MRS. ROSALIE MATOCHA, 87 IS BURIED

BODY OF HUSBAND IS ALSO MOVED TO CITY

Mrs. Rosalie Matocha, 87, beloved pioneer mother and resident of Milam county for 50 years, died at the home of her son, B. P. Matocha in Cameron, Monday October 8, 1934, following a short illness and a period of declining health due to advanced age.

When the news came that Mrs. Matocha had passed away the city was in sorrow both because of the loss in her death and in sympathy with this prominent family of pioneer residents. The Matocha family have been influential and active in city and county affairs for many years.

The body of the aged mother lay in the home where she had been tenderly cared for by Mrs. Matocha, the wife of her son, B. P. Matocha. Between them had grown up a companionship that ripened through the years of their association. She found a home there and death now leaves a sorrow that is two fold. The coffin was beautiful with its accoutrements of the Catholic faith and heaped high were tender flowers expressing both sympathy and esteem.

Her husband the late Michael Matocha, a true pioneer, was buried 45 years ago in Burlington. The body was exhumed and brought to Cameron Wednesday for burial. Thus both were in their final resting place laid together in the quiet simplicity of (See MRS. MATOCHA on page 12)

SUICIDE VERDICT FOR L. KOSTROUN

The body of Ladis Kostroun, 21, was discovered at 8 o'clock Monday morning in a pasture of the Kostroun farm west of Cameron near Marak by his brother, Joe Kostroun, Jr.

The youth had been shot twice with a pistol and the body lay near a gravel pit. Powder burns were on the body beneath the heart and on the forehead above the left eye, bullets having pierced and passed through at both places.

LAD'S LETTER

"Dearest Ma, Sisters, Brothers:

"Please forget me for doing this. For you know my health was bad. I just can't suffer like this any more.

"I only wish for God to bless you the time I'm gone. Good-by, Lad."

A verdict of suicide was rendered by Justice Gus Evans who with Constable Baily went to the scene shortly after nine o'clock Monday morning.

Young Kostroun left his home about 2:30 Sunday afternoon taking with him his hunting dogs. He had attended church at Marak Catholic church Sunday morning and seemed in good spirits and the family thought nothing unusual about his going. He disappeared into the woods and was not seen again alive.

He carried with him a haversack or small cloth bag. In this bag after the body was discovered was found a note directed to his mother, sisters and brothers telling of his intent to end his life. In the sack was also a sack of smoking tobacco, a light halter and a stone such as boys toss at rabbits.

When he did not return home Sunday evening the family did not consider this unusual for they concluded he had spent the night with a neighbor. Along late in the afternoon the dogs returned to their home and still this did not arouse anxiety among the family members. The next morning a younger brother, aged about 15 years, went into the pasture and near the gravel pit and saw his brother, Ladis lying on the ground. He thought his brother was asleep and went further into the pasture, returning presently and still thinking his brother asleep, re- (See KOSTROUN on page 6)

TEXAS HISTORY IN THE MAKING
No. 3—The Alamo, Cradle of Texas Liberty

—Think—Talk—Write—Texas Centennial in 1936

This is the Alamo, "Cradle of Texas Liberty," pictured as it stands today. Here Travis, surrounded by Santa Anna's men, wrote: "The garrison will be put to the sword if the fort is taken . . . I shall never surrender or retreat . . . Victory or death!" Here 182 brave Texans died, besieged by 10,000 Mexican troops, in one of the most heroic struggles ever recorded in the pages of history. March 6, 1836, was this sad day for Texas, and the men who fell here only urged Texans on to victory and independence. The Alamo building was erected in 1744 (although an inscription on the wall bears the date 1754.) Today this shrine stands in the heart of San Antonio, facing beautiful Alamo plaza. It was not a mission, but an overflow meeting place for Mission San Jose de Aguayo. Alamo means "Poplar tree" in Spanish, so the name, translated into English, would be "Poplar Church." Better System of Study Sought for Grade Pupils

To increase greater teacher efficiency and avoid home study that the child may have more time for play and recreation, the Parent-Teacher Association will hold a session Thursday at the High School to discuss a system of study in the schools.

In connection with the program, the following article is contributed for publication:

The National Parent-Teacher Magazine for this month has an excellent article called "Making Home Study Count." It offers some sound and welcome suggestions. Among many interesting things it says:

"A survey of school practices discloses that in this country the average expectation of time which a pupil of average ability must spend on home studying is as follows: below the seventh grade, little or no home assignments; seventh and eighth grades, 0 to 30 minutes; ninth grade, 30 to 40 minutes; tenth grade, 40 to 60 minutes; eleventh grade, 60 to 90 minutes.

The Literary Digest for September 29, this year, carries an article on the same subject called "Conservation of the School Children." Its author, Dr. Arthur E. Bassett, lay president of Swothmore Board of Education, "decries home work, calling it a needless strain, enfeebling the youth of to-day by painful night study." In part he says:

"There seems to be an absence of willingness—or, perhaps, ability (on the part of the teacher) to comprehend the fact that school work, study is labor, and that the fatigue of the young student is just as real as that of the man or woman who devotes his or her days to the earning of a living. A business man's hours of employment, the laborer's hours of toil, are limited, are measured carefully. They usually are free to enjoy evenings of recreation. The housewife is able to call it a day after dinner, but the youngsters, whose resistance to fatigue is only partly developed, are compelled often to sit up far into the night trying with strained eyes, overwrought nerves, and tired brains, to complete the prescribed 'home work.'"

To cut down on home study means that supervised study must be employed at school. This does not demand more time or more study periods. It means that the recreation period becomes largely a study period. The teacher helps the children decide what to learn and how to learn it; what should be remembered and what discarded; in other words, How to Study.

This type of teaching requires much more brain work on the part

Otto Wood, resident of Hidalgo county for 20 years, dug six dry holes to strike oil, then on the seventh he brought fortune to himself and an oil boom to his home town, Mission, Texas. of the teacher. It is much harder than the old method of sending the child home to do his studying. The teachers argue that the state requires each grade to cover so many pages of text books and that in order to do this, home work must be assigned. The state does require so much subject matter to be covered but it does not designate that all the facts be memorized. The methods of using the text books to the best advantage are left to the teacher.

Professor Jay B. Nash of New York University (writing in the School Parent and quoted in the New York Times) assails home work as "legalized criminality," and says it should never be used except in the last two years of high school.

"Home work—long hours of study—for the elementary school child and the junior high school child amounts to 'legalized criminality'" Mr. Nash wrote. "Home study cannot be justified in the light of modern psychology, philosophy or physiology. The practice is apparently based on a number of exploded theories.

"The first of these exploded theories is that home work is necessary to keep the child out of mischief. The second, the old Puritan theory that play is a waste of time, even actually immoral."

Professor Nash declared that "children of ten need six or seven hours of vigorous physical activity daily, of which home work is not a variety."

Dr. James Fredrick Rogers of the United States office of Education says that our schools have caused a new disease among children. It is called "school sickness" by Dr. J. V. Treynor of Council Bluffs, Iowa. Dr. Rogers says this illness is as "real as measles, and unfortunately, far more drawn out and full of misery." Dr. Treynor says the symptoms of the disease are "nervousness, irritability, restlessness anxiety and a highly emotional state."

Water Ballet at State Fair of Texas

Here are the girls in the "Show of the Century," feature attraction of the State Fair of Texas, which begins in Dallas October 6. TOO BAD

The Giants have lost in battle. We wish it were not so; We hoped they would win again— You know they have our Joe.

They have a dandy ball club. But somehow slipped at last. We have to watch our step, you know.

Until the battle is passed. Sometimes we think a game is won. Then by an unkind word There comes a change, a terrible change;

Its true altho absurd. —L. J. Bowling, Gause, Texas.

Unemployed Teachers Wanted For Relief Education Staff

There is room for five teachers who are unemployed, says E. A. Perrin, Superintendent of the schools, who has just been paid a visit by C. C. Comer of the state department of education.

Mr. Comer is representing the emergency educational program to which federal funds have been allotted for adult education and night schools.

Three teachers have been employed for negroes thus far and two classes have been established one in the library and the other in home making.

If there are any white teachers unemployed in Milam County they should get in touch with Mr. Perrin at once. The jobs pay $12 per week and will last four months.

Eight Seed Thieves Arrested in County

During the past month quite a bit of cotton seed stealing has been going on in this county and the sheriff's department has arrested eight men in connection with the stealing.

Charges of burglary have been entered against seven of the men and a case of felony theft against one.

John Olbrich of Burlington is again on the reader list of The Herald. Mr. Olbrich was in Cameron Saturday on business and while here paid an appreciated visit to the office of the publishers. He is an interesting talker and knows much of the history of Central Europe where much political controversy now rages. He is a native of the old Austrian Empire but came to America when a small boy with his parents. He has seen his former native country separated into small provinces and the old dominion disintegrate. Racial and political differences have for centuries caused much dissension in those countries and Mr. Olbrich does not look for an immediate composure of the situation there. Mr. Olbrich likes The Herald and will be a reader for the next two years.

Mrs. Mattie Shepherd who has been quite sick the past week, is much improved.

ALEX MARTIN VISITS IN CAMERON MONDAY

Alex Martin, who lives in the ranch country of Hays County, near San Marcos, was in Cameron Monday on his way to Waco where he is to stay for some time for treatment. Last year a mule ran him down on his ranch and injured his left eye and some fear is felt that he may have sustained a permanent serious injury. In an effort to save the eye he will be at 621 Dallas Street in Waco for some time while receiving treatment.

Mr. Martin is the son of the late Dr. J. M. Martin, a pioneer physician in Cameron and Milam County who came to this city when it was a small settlement not far removed from the days of the Texas revolution. The pioneer doctor lies buried in Oak Hill cemetery and a son, the late Jones Martin, is also buried there. His mother died in Cameron about five years ago and is buried beside her husband and son.

Mr. Martin, following the death of his mother whom he cared for during her declining years, moved to Aransas Pass, later settling near San Marcos where he has engaged in stock farming, now owning a choice herd of Angora goats, recently having paid $500 for a male.

Mr. Martin is a collector of old volumes, documents, etc. A number of articles have been contributed to the museum at the Herald building. Among his choice items is a pair of deringer pistols brought to Texas by his late father, Dr. J. M. Martin.

Some years ago when the Herald published a request for information bearing upon its origin, Mr. Martin brought to this office a subscription receipt given his father, Dr. Martin, who paid his subscription to this paper in 1860. He values this receipt highly.

Among his papers is an old tax receipt showing taxes paid on more than 100 acres of land adjoining the city, the sum being $2.50. This land is now estimated to be worth at least $100 per acre.

Mr. Martin owns a copy of the Davilla Tribune, a newspaper published at Davilla when that community was a growing place and educational center. This newspaper in that particular issue was advocating a link line railway through Milam county. It is a small publication of about four columns width with a valuable memento of early Milam County history.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Marak and family of Ad Hall were in Cameron Saturday and while in the city Mrs. Marak called at the office of the Herald and ordered the Herald mailed to her son, Bruno Marak who resides at Riverside, California. Bruno will enjoy reading the news of Cameron and Milam county and The Herald each week will be a big message from home. He likes the climate and conditions in the Golden Gate State, and his many friends at Ad Hall wish him great success.

Robert Lange who resides on R. 3 out of Cameron reports conditions this year improved over the previous year and his farm operation returning better profits. There are some features of the cotton reduction plan that is not as beneficial as needed for the small farmers but on the whole things are greatly improved. Mr. Lange has been a reader of The Herald for a number of years and has renewed for another year.

Now -
in glass jars!

For years the Duncan Coffee Company has proclaimed that, "when a better way to pack coffee is discovered Admiration Coffee will be packed that way."

As Usual, Admiration Coffee Adopts the Better Way

Now comes the announcement of the "better way." Scientists say the nearest approach to a perfect vacuum that has been attained in a tin can is 26.8 inches, while a vacuum of 29.5 inches is secured by using a glass jar container. Thirty inches would be a perfect commercial vacuum.

It is therefore obvious that coffee packed under vacuum, in glass jars, will keep fresh longer than when packed in tin or paper bags.

To keep your coffee fresh after opening, just replace the cap on the jar and give it a sharp twist. Other than being an ideal coffee container, there are dozens of uses for the glass jar after you've used the coffee from it.

If you use coffee pretty fast, you can also get the same delicious blend—Admiration Coffee—in cellophane wrapped paper bags at a few cents less per pound. And remember all Duncan Coffees are delivered fresh from the roaster to your grocer every seven days or oftener.

Should the Government Advertise?

Publishers of newspapers throughout the United States are extremely generous, as a rule, in printing information about the affairs of the government. They give much of their space to accurately reporting the developments that affect their readers.

So far as we know, no newspaper man objects to this practice. Indeed, they realize that newspapers are, in a sense, public servants although private business. The value of newspapers is appreciated and the freedom of the press defended by many who have no financial interests in the fourth estate.

While it is not our purpose that newspapers should receive compensation for printing the news, which is their business, nevertheless there is a class of public information that is very poorly classed as advertising and for which the newspaper should be compensated.

When the law requires the publication of certain legal notices and fixes the price to be paid, when an official statement of the expenditures of public funds is to be broadcast and when the government, in any of its branches feels that certain information should be conveyed to the body politic affected, regardless of the newspaper's judgment as to its news value, or the limitations upon its space, then and in that event the matter should be paid for.

The old saying that a laborer is worthy of his hire applies. No newspaper man wants money for printing the day to day developments of governmental affairs but when such publication is a matter of official record or required for the public information, there is no reason why the newspaper should not be paid for services rendered. The willingness of most newspaper men to stretch a point and print the news should not be taken advantage of.

We will go further and say that public funds should be publicly accounted for, whether they are expended by a city, county, or state, or other agency. The taxpayers should have the privilege of examining public accounts and these should be brought to their attention in a modern manner. Advertising is the method adopted by most successful businesses and it might profit government to follow the example.

While we believe that publication in a newspaper is the best, cheapest and most serviceable manner of publishing such accounts, we are not necessarily contending that this is the only method to be considered. If billboards, pamphlets or sky writing is best, in the judgment of the people affected, then the advertising should be handled to suit the taxpayers' preference.

"A Nicer Way."

Witnesses before the Senate committee investigating the munitions industry told of certain interesting facts, including commissions paid to influential persons in securing the business.

Senator Nye asked one of them, "isn't it a fact that commissions actually mean bribes?" The answer was, "yes."

Then, asked the Senator, "why call them commissions?" "Well, Senator," said the witness, "it's a nicer

School Teacher Finds Educational Value in Newspaper Feature

way of putting it."

The occurrence complained of happened in South America but the habit of certain politicians in securing "commissions" is not altogether unknown in the United States. Too often, public officials shudder at bribes but are willing to accept compensation in the form of business thrown their way. This is seen frequently when lawyer-statesmen represent certain interests, although we willingly admit that there are instances when the employment is altogether proper.

Entitled To Be Heard.

The work of the Senate committee investigating the activities of the munitions makers has resulted in so many disclosures that it is impossible to record them in any limited space.

Naturally, when the record reveals names and places, and often amounts, there will be criticism. Already, we hear, our munition companies are losing business in some foreign countries because of the suspicions cast upon some officials who were mentioned in correspondence relating to sale of war supplies.

The best answer to this kind of complaint is the resolution recently passed by the International Conference of Mutilated War Veterans in their meeting at Geneva, Switzerland. It praised the "courageous investigation of the American Senate" and urged all countries to undertake similar inquiries. These mutilated veterans ought to have the right to speak; they made no profit out of war.

WATCH YOUR GOVERNMENT

It is to be hoped as President Roosevelt suggests that the people of the United States are taking a keener interest in national affairs than ever before.

No representative system of government can survive if the voters are apathetic and fail to take stock of the national as well as private rights. The average citizen must be able to understand what government is doing if he or she is to pass sound judgment upon it at the polls.

The people of the several states should not overlook the importance of issues arising in their own commonwealth. They should be cognizant of the difference between good and bad management in their local affairs. It is necessary if this government of the people is to operate for the people.

AS THE CAMPAIGN ENDS

The political campaign is drawing to a close. For some weeks most of our citizens will be disturbed and to a certain extent distracted by the conflicting din of the political battle.

There will be some defeated candidates. They should take their defeat without soreness. No man should offer in politics if defeat is going to embitter him. A political contest does not have to be a personal contest, although some candidates adopt tactics calculated to make it so. Issues of governmental policy should determine the voting, not personalities.

The victorious candidates may as well take their victories with humility. If they are assuming an office with responsibility, they will find it a hard and difficult problem. Many questions will arise to perplex and oftentimes without having any present solution which is acceptable. All these things must be faced, responsibility for action assumed, and the authority of office continued in the face of cussing or praise, as it may come.

Regardless of who wins and who loses, the State and County must go on, people can not live without some social organization, schools must continue to educate children, roads be constructed and maintained to give various sections avenues of communication, property and persons must be protected in the exercise of their rights, and the sensible citizen wants the men who take charge to exercise wisely the power given them.

Black-Draught For Dizziness, Headache Due To Constipation

"I have used Thedford's Black-Draught several years and find it splendid," writes Mr. G. W. Holley, of St. Paul, Va. "I take it for dizziness or headache (due to constipation). I have never found anything better. A short while ago, we began giving our children Syrup of Black-Draught as a laxative for colds and little stomach ailments, and have found it very satisfactory." Millions of packages of Thedford's Black-Draught are required to satisfy the demand for this potent, old reliable, purely vegetable laxative. 25c a package. "Children like the Syrup."

Mrs. Jesse Hinds, history teacher at Goldbusk, Coleman county, Texas, says that she finds the newspaper feature "Odd Texas" of great value in graphically teaching Texas history to her pupils. She is pictured with a big board on which the Odd Texas drawings are pasted each week for inspection by the students, and future reference. The drawings are clipped from the Coleman Democrat-Voice. This feature is being used regularly in The Cameron Herald and history teachers throughout Cameron trade area could likewise find the series of benefit. KOSTROUN

The lad told his brother, Joe Kostroun, Jr., that Ladis was down in the pasture asleep. Joe then went to where his brother lay and found him dead. The body lay face up in the sun and Joe took the shirt from the body and covered the face to hide the bullet wound. He then went home and got a sheet and went back to the pit to cover the entire body. Officers were then notified and the inquest held.

Examination of the body showed heavy powder burns on the left side beneath the heart and the fore head above the left eye. The bullet in the body passed through and was removed at the Leland Green Funeral Home where the body was taken. The bullet entered at the back of near the spine. The other bullet passed through his head.

Beside the body lay a .45 calibre automatic pistol from which two shells had been discharged. His left hand lay over the gun, but the officers concluded that the shooting was done with the right hand and the gun fell in that position as the body crumpled to the ground. The sack containing the note was some 4 feet away.

Justice Evans said that indications were that Kostroun had taken his life some time early in the afternoon of Sunday. The body had thus lain upon the ground through the hot afternoon Sunday and Monday night until found early that morning.

Although young Kostroun assigned suffering and ill health as the cause of his act, the family said that his health had not been bad but that he had suffered at times with headache. The youth had been reared in that community and the Kostroun home is one of the best in the Markak section, the family owning some 400 acres of rich black land.

Father a Suicide

His father, Joe Kostroun, Sr., committed suicide nine years ago in the home. He left his family and went to the second story of the home. A short time later a shot was heard and the father was found dead. The son followed this manner almost a decade later.

Ladis Kostroun was well known and liked in Cameron, having many friends here who are shocked at his untimely end. Funeral services were held at Marak church with Rev. E. Kacer, the pastor, reading the rites.

TEXAS HISTORY IN THE MAKING

No. 2. The Founding of Fort Davis

—Think—Talk—Write—Texas Centennial in 1936
On October 3, 1854, United States soldiers, searching for a "water route" to the Far West, marched up Limpia Canyon into the center of the Davis Mountains in the Big Bend country of Texas, and Fort Davis was officially founded on October 7, according to records of the War Department. The mountains were thick with Mesquero Apache Indians, and travel was difficult, but this big Fort made settlement of the mile-high region possible. Its work done, the Indians safely on a New Mexico reservation, Fort Davis was abandoned in 1891. Its charming ruins, some of the most extensive in Texas, may still be seen within a stone's throw of the little city of Fort Davis which now stands beneath the forbidding cliffs of the Davis Mountains. The lower picture, taken in 1886, shows the fort in its prime, while above is a most excellent photo of the officers who were stationed there at that time. Fort Davis will celebrate the 80th anniversary of its founding on October 6. (Texas News Photos.)

Burkhart Must Go To Prison; Courts Uphold Sentence

The following news story appeared in Wednesday afternoon's Austin Statesman:

W. D. Burkhart, former Thorndale cafe man, must serve a 45-year term on his conviction of beating and kicking to death 17-year-old Henry James, brother of Rep. Jesse James of Thorndale, the court of criminal appeals decided today in final action on the case.

The court at its first sitting of the new term, denied further hearing on the case.

Young James was found unconscious on a Williamson county highway near Thorndale, and died later.

Investigation revealed that he died of injuries received in a beating and not as the result of being struck by a car, as was first supposed. Burkhart, found guilty, had already been denied an appeal when his case was closed today.—Rockdale Reporter.

Young Texan Thrills State Fair Throngs

The State Fair of Texas does not have to go out of the state to get one of its greatest attractions, and the picture of Manuel King, 10-year-old Rio Grande Valley boy handling full grown lions proves it. Manuel, the only boy lion trainer in the world, is the son of "Snake" King, famous Valley rancher. He goes in for animals in general and snakes in particular. Manuel stages two big animal shows daily at the State Fair in Dallas this year, and they're free to all those who attend the Fair. (Texas News Photos.)

Milam county has 200 Corn-Hog contract signers. Ninety six attended the meet Saturday and sixty, who were not able to attend, have voiced their approval through the mails or otherwise.

DEPRESSION OUTWITTED

"Outwitting Depression" seemed to be the theme of an Achievement Day event held at the home of Mrs. Luke Modisette, yard demonstrator for the Duncan Club.

A model pantry was displayed, a table heaped with fall garden products, an exhibit of yeast breads and variations of yeast breads, candies and gifts from the pantry shelves, a home industry work work display and community relics and antiques, were shown by the Club members to approximately sixty guests.

PAINT WORKS WONDERS

"When the wood work in my bedroom was painted I was so proud I didn't mind the cost and didn't know a little paint could help so much," Mrs. F. M. Hauptfleisch, bedroom demonstrator for the Gause Club told the visitors on Achievement Day tour.

To get an ivory color for the wood work, Mrs. Hauptfleisch dropped a few drops of light oak floor paint into white paint. This gave a cream or ivory finish which harmonized with the paper.

Miss Billie Gaither Becomes Bride of Alvin Charles Nolte In Impressive Ring Ceremony At Methodist Church Sunday

Of wide interest was the marriage of Miss Billie Gaither to Alvin Charles Nolte, which was solemnized in an impressive ring service, at the First Methodist church Sunday afternoon, October 7th at five o'clock, with Rev. Walter L. Cannan, pastor, reading the service.

Ceremony Beautiful

The ceremony was beautiful in all its appointments. The altar, under the skilful hand of Cameron Florist, was made attractive by baskets of handsome chrysanthemums intermingled with pretty palms and choice woodland ferns, with groupings of the ferns at either side and at back, with beautiful foliage that twined the sides of the altar and reached to the top of the altar loft, making an attractive setting for the gathering of the bridal party. Tall candlebrases shed a pretty glow over the scene.

Wedding Music

Robert Smith played a group of bridal selections as the guests were assembling, and also gave the traditional wedding marches and accompanied Mrs. M. K. Culver of Thorndale, and Mrs. A. J. Triggs of Cameron, who sang the bridal solos. Mrs. Culver was becomingly dressed in black velvet and Mrs. Triggs wore a pretty navy blue costume. Both wore shoulder corsages.

Lovely Gowns

An array of lovely feminine gowns were worn by the bridesmaids whose costumes were sheer velvets in shades of blue fashioned on clinging lines, with skirts falling to the floor, and carried large handsome bouquets of chrysanthemums in the yellow tone. Bridesmaids were Miss Catherine Browning, University of Texas student; Miss Gladys Davis, Miss Bonnell Neinst, Mrs. Gill De Witt of Houston, Mrs. J. W. Bowman, Mrs. John K. Moore of Waco, matron of honor.

Given By Father

The bride was given in marriage by her father, W. E. Gaither. She was handsomely gowned in a Lelong model of light blue velvet, developed on clinging lines which enhanced her grace and carriage and striking brunette beauty; wore a small blue hat and carried a bouquet of Tallasman roses and Valley lilies tied with gold lace. She is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Gaither, was a popular student at Cameron high school where she completed her work and afterward attended school at Southwestern University at Georgetown and C. I. A. at Denton. This marriage united two prominent families of Milam county.

Groom Well Known

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Nolte, prominent citizens of Ben Arnold. He is a graduate of Cameron high school and later attended college in Tyler, and for the past five years has been an employee of the Citizens National Bank as bookkeeper. He is an excellent young business man, and is popular with a large circle of friends.

R. D. Butcher was the best man; Charles Stall, John Pierce, Waymond Jenness of Cameron and O. K. Thornton of Austin were groomsmen. Following the marriage a reception was held at the "Gaither Place" where beautiful flowers added attraction to the home. The large handsome double heart wedding cake that was embossed in shower bouquet of tallasman roses, was cut by the bride, who later changed her wedding dress for a traveling suit of rust colored wool with a cape collar of smoke fox, with accessories to match, then the happy couple left for a week's visit in Southern Texas.

Out of Town Guests

Many out of town guests were present, among them were: Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Kincannon, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Page, George Ashworth, Miss Annie Bowman, Eddy; Miss Thelma Reese, Rogers; Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Long, Rodrick and William Long, Waco; Mrs. B. J. Jenkins, John Bill and Joe Mack Jenkins, Waxahachie; Mrs. Willie B. Rayzor, Dallas; Mrs. J. C. Gaither, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Gaither, Jr., Mary Ann Gaither, Jim Gaither, Fort Worth; Mrs. Donna Carnes; Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Nolte, Ben Arnold, parents of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. Mike Coleman, Bryan; Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Calloway, Edwin Calloway, Temple; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Camp, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Camp, San Gabriel; Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Culver, Thorndale; Mr. and Mrs. Gill De Witt, Houston; Mrs. Keith, Ben Arnold; Ben Atkinson, Austin; Miss Harriett Flinn, Houston.

An array of beautiful and expensive presents were on display at the Gaither home, and were admired by the guests.

COUNTY LEADERSHIP

The developing of county leadership is the goal set for County Recreational Work, according to a report of Mrs. L. L. Bradley, County Recreational Director.

In accomplishing these goals in the County, the following places for recreational work were submitted:

1. That each club select two couples who will be responsible for conducting the recreational work in the community.

2. Regular monthly training school will be held for these representatives.

This plan is to be in effect at the beginning of the new year, when the home demonstration club officers go into office.

M. B. Brooks and son Davis Brooks of Forney, spent the week end here in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Frank Green. They were accompanied home by Mrs. Brooks who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Green for several weeks.

historic St. Monica's cemetery in Cameron. Hundreds paid tribute to them at the funeral hour at nine o'clock Wednesday morning, October 10, 1934.

Mrs. Rosalie Matocha was born in Austria August 21, 1847. She came to Texas with her husband in 1882. They moved to Fayette county where they lived two years and then moved to Milam county where she has resided continuously until the time of her death.

Surviving her are seven children, Michael Matocha, Mrs. Chas. Sens, Mrs. John Matula, A. J. Matocha, Vera Matocha, and B. P. Matocha. There are 30 grand children and 23 great grand children.

Her husband, Michael Matocha, died in Burlington in 1888. The oldest child was 17 and the youngest one year of age. The small farm on which they lived was bought a year or two before her husband died. After his death she was forced to give the farm up because she had no income and most of the children were too small to work. The next year she moved with her family to Buckholts living there several years. She then bought a small place west of Cameron where she resided till 1920 at which time she moved to Cameron and lived here until her death.

It had always been her wish to be buried by the side of her husband. Her children had their fathers' remains brought from Burlington where he was buried 45 years ago and they were interred by her side when she was buried in the Catholic Cemetery here Wednesday.

During her early life, particularly after her husband's death, she had undergone great hardships. Left penniless with a family of small children and unable to speak the English language she never despaired.

Her four grand sons and Lincoln Mondrik and Jaro Matula acted as pall bearers.

Requiem High Mass was said at St. Monica's church by Rev. Geo. Apel, pastor, assisted by Rev. K. Kacer of Marak.

At the services five grand sons and one great grand son were at the altar as altar boys: Boles Matocha, Jr., Paul, Alfons, Edward and Charles Lee and great grand son, Arthur Charles Swain of Sweetwater.

Pall bearers were her grand sons: Albert an dArthur Matula, George Matocha, Louis Svetlik, Jim Matocha and Linkie Mondrik.

WILLIAMS

community and county.

Attesting the regard for him was the large attendance at his funeral. People came from all sections of the county. Among the relatives to attend was his grand mother, Mrs. Martha Smith, who resides at her country home near Cameron. She celebrated her 97th birthday some months ago. John Williams was the grandson of the late William Henry Smith, one of the first men to serve as County Judge in Milam county.

Mr. Williams was instantly killed while hunting. He had gone up a tree in the river bottom north of Cameron to jump a squirrel out. Fred Jackson his companion on the hunt and a fellow worker at the ice plant, was told to shoot when the squirrel emerged from the tree trunk. The gun charge struck Williams in the face. Jackson, overcome by the accident, has suffered greatly. The entire community joins in grief both for Mr. Jackson and Mr. Williams who was loved and respected by all the people.

Surviving him are his widow and three children, two boys and one daughter, all of whom live at home in Cameron.

Pall bearers were J. F. Guggolz, Hayden Lawrence, Mr. Sledge, Jim McGoldrick, Henderson Walker and Dick Harris.

R. L. Batte of Thorndale is among many who renewed their subscriptions since last week among the old readers. Mr. Batte is manager of the Batte industries of that place and was the first city marshal of Thorndale, having resigned recently to devote his entire time to his business.

Word has been received that Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Rinn are the proud parents of a baby boy born to them on October 2 in their home at 1306 Walton street, Houston. The boy weighed 7 pounds and has been named Henry Dell. His grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rinn live at Norman Valley. Mrs. Rinn was formerly Miss Corene Fuller. Mr. Rinn was at one time engaged in business in Cameron.

Miss Harriett Flinn who is attending a business college in Houston, is home for the week end and attended the Gaither-Nolte wedding.

Big Foot Wallace's Hand to Hand Fight

By J. C. DUVAL

IN the fall of 1842 Indians were more troublesome than ever on the Texas frontier. You couldn't stake a horse out at night with expectation of finding it next morning, and a fellow's scalp wasn't safe on his head outside of his own cabin," said Big Foot Wallace, in a history written by J. C. Duval, entitled, "The Adventures of Big Foot Wallace." "The people on the frontier at last came to the conclusion that something had to be done or else they would be compelled to fall back on the settlements, which would have been reversing the natural order of things, so we met by agreement at my ranch, organized a company of 40 men, and next time the Indians came down from the mountains we took their trail, determined to follow it as long as our horses held out. The trail led us up toward the headwaters of the Llano river, and on the third day out I discovered a great many signal smokes rising in the direction we were traveling. That night we camped near a water hole, putting out a double guard. Just before sundown I saw a smoke, apparently about three miles to the north-east of us, and felt satisfied there was a party of Indians encamped nearby. I went to the captain of our company and told him if granted leave of absence I would get up an hour before daylight and try to spy out the Indian camp.

Bump Into Big Indian

"The captain told the night guard to pass me out whenever I wanted to go. Whetting up Old Butcher and ramming a bullet down the barrel of Old Betsy, I left camp two hours before daylight, headed in the direction of that smoke I had seen the evening before.

"The chaparral was as thick in some places as hair on a dog's back, but I threaded through it in the darkness and after traveling a mile and a half came to a deep canyon that seemed to lead up in the direction I had seen the smoke. I scrambled down into it and waited until daybreak, then slowly and cautiously continued my course along the bottom of the canyon, which was crooked, and in some places very steep and narrow.

"At length I came to a place where the canyon turned sharply to the left, and just as I rounded its corner I came plump up against a big Indian, who was coming down the canyon, with intention, I suspect, of spying out our own camp. We were both stooping down when we met and our heads bumped together with such force that the Indian rolled one way and I rolled the other. We jumped to our feet about the same time, but the encounter was so unexpected that we stood uncertain for a moment, glaring at each other.

Drop Rifles and Grapple

"The Indian had a rifle as well as I, but we were too close to fire, so it seemed we both came to the same conclusion as what was best to do, for we both dropped our rifles and grappled one another, saying not a word. Without meaning to brag, in those days I was young and strong, and do not believe there was a white man west of the Colorado river who could down me in a regular bear-hug wrestling match. But the minute I hefted that Indian I knew I had undertaken a job that would bring sweat from me, and perhaps blood. He was nearly as tall as I, at least six feet one inch, and weighed, I guess, about 175 pounds net, for he wore no clothes worth mentioning. I had the advantage in weight, but he was wiry and active as a wild cat, sleek as an eel, and was covered from head to foot with bear's grease.

"We went at it in dead earnest—not a word being spoken by either of us—first up one side the canyon, down the other side, and sometimes on bottom of the canyon. I was a little stronger than the Indian, could throw him easily enough, but the moment he touched ground the 'varmint' would give himself a sort of squirm, like a snake, and pop right up on top of me again. I could hold him but for a moment, he was so slick with bear's grease,

"The combat so far was just about even—and all through the fight we had been trying to draw our butcher knives from their sheaths, but neither could get a chance to do so. At last, I realized my strength was slowly failing me and that if I did not do something soon my scalp would be lifted. The Indian was getting better the longer he fought. So next time we rose to our feet I put forth all my strength and gave him a back-handed trip that threw him with great force against a sharp-pointed rock lying on the ground. The Indian's head came in contact with the rock, which stunned him temporarily, giving me time to draw my knife and plunge it with all my strength up to the hilt in his body. The moment he felt cold steel he threw me from him as if I had been a 10-year-old boy, sprang upon me before I could rise, drew his own butcher knife and raised it with intention of plunging it into my breast.

"I tell you, boys," continued Wallace, with a faraway look in his eyes, "I often see that Indian now in my dreams, especially after eating a hearty supper of bear meat and honey, grappling me by the throat with left hand, the gleaming, butcher knife raised high in his right hand, and two eyes blazing down at me like a panther's in the dark. It is astonishing how fast a man can think under such circumstances. I looked upon the blue sky, and bright sun overhead. Then thought of mother as I remembered her when a little boy, the old home, apple orchard, and creek where I used to go swimming. All these, and many more thoughts, flashed through my mind in the little time that knife was gleaming over my breast.

Indian Loses Fight

"Suddenly the Indian quivered, while on top of me, gave a yell, and down went the knife with a force that buried it to the hilt in the earth at my side.

"The last time I threw down the Indian a deep gash was cut in his forehead by the sharp-pointed rock, and blood running down his eyes from this wound so blinded him that he struck wildly with his butcher knife, the blade missing me about half an inch. I fully expected him to repeat the blow, but he lay still and made no effort to withdraw the knife from the ground. I looked at his eyes; they were set hard and fast, but there was a devilish sort of grin about his mouth as if he died in the belief he had sent me before him to the happy hunting grounds.

"I threw his body off of me and got up weak and trembling. My knife had gone to his heart. I looked at the dead Indian for a while, lying there so still, and said to myself: 'Well, red warrior, you made a good fight, and if luck had not gone against you you would have been where I am and I would have been where you are. Now I shall do for you what I never did for an Indian before—I am going to give you a decent Christian burial.'

"So, I laid his rifle beside him, according to Indian custom, that it might be handy when he got to the happy hunting grounds, and gathered pieces of rock from the canyon, piling them around and over his body, until it was completely covered and safe from attacks of coyotes or other wild animals. There I left him at rest in his crude and lonely grave, a foe worthy of any man's steel. This is a true account of my fight with the big Indian in the canyon."

The MacDonald Observatory on Mount Locke

By VAN BLARCOM

Seventh and Taylor, Fort Worth, Texas.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Home Color Print Co.)

MT. Locke, 6,790-foot peak in the Davis mountains in Southwestern Texas, site of the new MacDonald Observatory, will have the second largest telescope in the world. It will be a co-operative enterprise on the part of the University of Texas, which is erecting the telescope and observatory buildings from a part of the bequest of the late W. J. MacDonald of Paris, Texas, and the University of Chicago, which is to provide a staff for the observatory. The agreement between the two universities is the first co-operative effort of its kind in astronomy in this country, enabling them to build a much larger and effective instrument than would have been possible had two independent observatories been constructed and staffed. Also the co-operative agreement will mean a saving of over $1,000,000 to the two universities.

The decision of Dr. Otto Struve, director of the Yerkes Observatory of the University of Chicago, to locate the MacDonald Observatory on Mt. Locke was made following the return of an expedition, which remained 17 nights on Mt. Locke making observations, that confirmed the findings of two earlier expeditions.

Why Mt. Locke Selected

The tract of 200 acres, which includes Mt. Locke, was given the University of Texas for the observatory site. It is about 15 miles from Fort Davis, the nearest town, to which a hard surfaced road is being built. Dr. Struve believes Mt. Locke offers the best conditions for astronomical research in the United States.

Because the solar system is unsymmetrically situated among galaxy stars, and more than nine-tenths of these stars and nebulae interesting to astronomers are south of the equator, the farther south an observatory may be located the better the visibility.

The Southern latitude of Mt. Locke, approximately 31 degrees, makes many stars visible which are never above the horizon at Yerkes Observatory, Williams Bay, Wis. Atmospheric conditions also are much better in the Davis mountains, nights being uniformly clear and stars twice as bright as in Eastern States. The elevation of Mt. Locke exceeds that of Mt. Wilson and Lick Observatories, and is just a little short of the elevation of Lowell Observatory, near Flagstaff, Ariz.

Special Designed Telescope

A telescope designed for one type of work is not always suitable for another type. The measurement of close stars, for example, depends primarily upon the revolving power of a telescope, and this, in turn, depends upon large aperture combined with great focal length. The 49-inch Yerkes refractor is admirably adapted for this kind of work.

On the other hand, the photography of star spectra demands great light-gathering power, and is best carried out with reflecting telescope of very large aperture. The 100-inch reflector at Mt. Wilson is by far the strongest instrument for this kind of work.

Because the MacDonald telescope must supplement, and not duplicate, equipment already available at Yerkes Observatory, and must satisfy the interest and needs of the staff of astronomers who will use it, it was decided that the most useful type of instrument would be a reflector having a concave mirror of about 80-inch aperture and a focal ratio of about one to four. This means that the distance from the mirror to the focus would be four times 80 inches or 27 feet.

The Mt. Locke telescope will be much shorter than the Yerkes reflector, which is 62 feet long, but will have the aperture, of about four times the light-gathering power, and therefore will be much more efficient for photography of faint stars or of stellar spectra. The focal ratio is short enough, however, to be suitable for photography of faint nebulae and distant galaxies.

The mounting of the MacDonald telescope is to be constructed in a way that the light of any star may be concentrated in a room of constant temperature, where it may be analyzed with the aid of prisms, photo-electric photometers or other analyzers. There will be a plateholder for the direct photography of comets, stars, planets and nebulae, and specially designed lenses which will improve the optical definition of the instrument.

Building Large Mirror

Second only in light-gathering power to the 100-inch mirror at Mt. Wilson, the MacDonald telescope will have an 80-inch mirror made of glass with low efficiency of expansion and therefore in a climate where appreciable change of temperature during one night is unusual.

Casting of the Mt. Locke mirror will require at least a year and polishing and shaping will require another year. The building which will house the telescope is to be 100 feet high and 62 feet in diameter inside. The telescope will reveal stars of the twentieth magnitude, or 100,000,000 light years distant. Chief work of the observatory will be astronomical photography, and in this respect it will be the greatest observatory in the world. The work to be done is in the newer phases of astronomy and astrophysics, having to do particularly with the physical nature of heavenly bodies. The problems to be taken up will include the study of chemical composition of the atmosphere of stars, the study of distant universes, which involves a test of the Einstein theory, and study of gaseous compositions of the nebulae, comets and planets.

Dome Will Be Visible for Miles

The dome of the observatory, coated with aluminum paint, will be visible for many miles; in fact, from Mt. Locke summit one can view Mexico, nearly 100 miles distant, also view New Mexico and perhaps 15 counties in Texas. The leisurely progress in completing of the observatory plant is due to the fact that more than a year will be required for casting the pyrex glass mirror of the telescope. This vast block of glass will be cooled slowly underground by gradual withdrawal of electric heat, the cooling process requiring long and careful watching. The mirror will be convex, polished by hand, and the inner surface coated with silver. The mirror will reflect into a smaller mirror, which will send its beams back through the 20-inch aperture to a third mirror, reflecting into a dark room. There some of the greatest work in astronomy will be accomplished.

Concrete piers for the Mt. Locke telescope axis have been in place for some time, and steel for the first three floors of the observatory building is in place. The dome will ride on 26 beveled wheels, and a motor of seven and a half horse power will be used to turn it. Bottom floors of the building will house the driving machinery, second floor laboratories and work rooms, while the third floor will be used entirely for observing and operating the telescope.

Purpose of the National Better Housing Act

By FEDERAL HOUSING ADMINISTRATION
Washington, D. C.

NO group has been harder hit by the depression than workers in the building industry. New construction has dropped nearly 90% from what it was in 1926-29. About one-third of the workers whose families now are on the relief rolls are normally employed in the building industry, and many others in factories, transportation and other fields are indirectly dependent upon this industry for a livelihood.

Until these workers are largely re-employed, no community can enjoy a full measure of prosperity.

The last Congress recognized this fact. It passed the National Housing Act, one of the purposes of which is to restore to useful private enterprise the largest group of workers still unemployed.

This Act, among other things, should make available, through private lending agencies, approximately $1,000,000,000 for financing alterations, repairs and improvements upon all types of real property, and at the lowest charges ever offered for this type of loan.

What every city is now asking is: "How can we get the greatest and most immediate benefit from the National Housing Act? How can we use this Act to improve business conditions and to help relieve distress among the unemployed?"

Benefits from the Act

The quickest way to get reemployment in private enterprise is through making property repairs and improvements. This work can begin almost as soon as it is decided upon.

The Federal Housing Administration, created to administer the Housing Act, suggests that every city wishing to derive the greatest benefit from the Act organize a local campaign of modernizing and improvement, under the Better Housing Program, similar to those successfully conducted in many cities during the past two years.

The administration believes that only in this way can the people of a community be fully informed as to how they can take advantage of the new financing feature of the Act, and as to the desirability of making needed repairs and improvements to their property at this time.

The Federal Housing Administration is ready to give assistance to those communities which desire to set up such a program. It will, wherever possible, send an experienced man to the city to assist in the organization work. It will supply literature in necessary quantities for distribution to property owners, architects, building supply and other merchants; it will supply sample posters, display cards, news stories, speeches and other material for publicizing the program. And it will suggest sample forms and complete instructions for field workers.

How a Better Housing Program Benefits

A large part of every dollar spent for modernizing goes direct to labor. Most of this money immediately is put back into the channels of retail trade. Every dollar brought out of hiding and paid in wages multiplies in the course of a year many times. Campaigns held in 84 cities during 1932-33 resulted in an average expenditure for modernization of roughly $10 per capita. (And at that time there was no financing feature such as now provided by the National Housing Act).

Should your community's program be as successful as these earlier campaigns, it would give rise to a gross increase in all business of many times the amount actually spent for rebuilding.

For every building tradesman put to work it is estimated that on the average a family of four can be taken off the relief rolls. With winter coming, a modernization campaign will help greatly to relieve distress among the unemployed, and by putting men to work in private enterprise, will lessen the public burden of relief.

Much necessary maintenance and repair work has been deferred in recent years due to force of circumstances. In many cases properties have been so seriously neglected as to jeopardize their future value. Returns from the CWA real property inventory made last winter shows that in nearly every city at least half of the homes are in need of repair, many of them being in very bad condition. The making of needed repairs not only benefits a property and increases its usefulness and value but generally improves the beauty and appearance of a city. A modernizing campaign is a worthwhile civic enterprise which appeals to all those interested in improving the condition of their community.

How to Organize a Local Better Housing Program

Detailed information, showing how to organize a local modernizing and improvement or Better Housing Program will be furnished by the Federal Housing Administration, Washington, D. C. Write the Administration for information and literature.

The local campaign should be held under the sponsorship of the leading business organization, such as the Chamber of Commerce; or under the joint sponsorship of several organizations; or under the sponsorship of an organization created especially to handle it. Those cities, or towns, or villages, which push the program most aggressively will be the ones to derive the greatest benefit from the National Housing Act.

A tremendous amount of modernizing and repair work needs to be done.

Liberal financing is available. Building tradesmen are waiting to go to work.

The plan is ready.

TIMBER WOLVES MENACING

Timber wolves in Cooke county have been so menacing that farmers go armed to kill them when opportunity is afforded. They have been more daring this fall in that section than for many years, due to summer drought forcing them from their usual haunts in search of food. Many farmers have lost calves and fowls from depredations of the animals.

CATCHES SEA TURTLE

Clarence Bartley of Morgan's Point, near Houston, recently caught a 15-pound sea turtle on an ordinary fishing hook, line and pole. It is unusual catch a sea turtle even with such small tackle, and fishermen believe the recent Gulf storm drove this turtle into the bay.

The School Bells Are Ringing

THE children are all back in school now. The school house didn't burn down like Johnnie may have hoped it would, and while the hard times and drouth have decreased tax money, yet the school boards as a general rule say the term will last as long as usual. The tornado may have come perilously near some of the school houses, tearing down shacks and blowing down trees, but I haven't heard of any school house being destroyed. Therefore Johnnie and Bobbie have had to take up the burden of life, and as I write, some thirty million boys and girls in this country have been called to what was denominated in my school days as "books." The schools of the South in reconstruction times were vastly different from what they are now and if we old fellows didn't learn much it possibly was because we didn't have much chance. Most of the teachers who taught me could hardly pass the fifth grade in our modern schools, except that they put high pressure on arithmetic and spelling and a few other fundamentals. However, one teacher I went to always turned us back in arithmetic when we got to decimal fractions. Decimal fractions were called "vulgar fractions" at that time and I had an idea the old man didn't think them a proper thing to teach to a mixed class of boys and girls. It was many years afterward before it dawned on me that the old gentleman didn't know how to teach them. We didn't have any busses to carry us to school. I walked never less than two miles to the school house and when I got there at 8 o'clock I had to sit on split log benches until 6 p. m., with two 15-minute recesses and an hour for dinner. We had no one (or wanted) anyone to teach us how to play. And I believe we had as much fun as if we had all kind of coaches and supervisors. The boys played "Cat," "Shinny" and "Town-ball" and before I received my degree (?) baseball came in and we played that. At that time there was this difference between the way we played it and the present way. We really pitched the ball and the pitcher's prowess was determined by his ability to pitch the ball so the batter could hit it. I have known one side to stay in during an entire noon hour and when "books" were called the score might stand 65 to 0. On Christmas the teacher had to treat the school or have the school barred and closed, and if he showed up without the apples, chestnuts or candy, there was only one thing to do and that was to duck him in the pond. I saw one fellow put in when we had to break the ice. I wonder if the modern school boy would have his ire raised if some one was to come by his school and holler, "School Butter?" In my day this was the greatest insult possible and I have known teachers to turn all the boys out to chase man or boy who offered the insult. We never caught but one of these miscreants and we denuded him of all his garments save one before turning him loose. I did not know then, nor do I know now, why it was an insult to a school to use that word "school butter," and if any old timer can enlighten me I shall be obliged. Our schools usually lasted about four months. We had no grades and the entire school stood up in a long line for the spelling lesson, and if you missed a word the one who spelled it correctly went above you. We called it "tripping," and while I was often "tripped" none of the "trippers"

were like Whittier's little girl who said:

"I'm sorry that I spelled the word,
I hate to go above you,
And the brown eyes lower fell,
Because you know I love you."

It was a battle for the strongest in the old Ebenezer school, in the school room and on the play ground.

Is It Machinery?

Sir Josiah Stamp, a director in the Bank of England and President of the London Midland Railway, the largest on the British Isles, in an address to a convention of scientists begs them to put on the brakes so far as any new inventions are concerned. Sir Stamp told them that their discoveries were the root of all our troubles. Machinery had displaced man power without giving those it displaced any means of livelihood. He said he trembled with dread as to what is going to happen to any kind of economic organism which is trying to keep in balance, particularly under an individualistic form of society like that existing in England and the United States. He says he trembles still more as to what would happen under any other form of society. That machinery is undoubtedly largely responsible for unemployment in this country can be seen from the government's investigations into the textile strike. It has been shown that in 20 years the machine has played havoc with labor. One machine is now doing the work of what it took 216 employees to do in 1914. This machine can be operated by one young girl and the question is what is to become of the 215 who lost their jobs? This machine does not do all the work in a textile mill but other machines have taken the place of many workers. I talked with the superintendent of a North Carolina mill two years ago and he told me his mill was installing three new machines that would displace 42 operators each. I asked him what would become of the 126 persons who would lose their jobs and he answered: "That is the serious phase of the matter but nothing can stop progress." An investigation of machinery in the steel mills revealed that but for the machines installed during the last 25 years the mills would be compelled to employ five and half times as many operators as are now employed. If there was some way, as Sir Stamp says, to balance or adjust our new inventions so that all would benefit, the machine might bring the "abundant life" we hear so much about and which is so much desired by all. But like the English financier, I can't see how it can be done. We see evidence of the man-slaughter the machine is doing all around us. I counted the cars in one train the other day and there were 104 cars pulled by one engine and manned with a crew of five. And I have seen the time on this same railroad when 15 cars were all the engine could pull. These monster engines have therefore reduced seven crews to one—five men taking the place of 35. Of course, as the cotton mill superintendent said: "Nothing can stop progress." But with ten million persons on the unemployed list, it is something worthy of serious consideration.

Seeing America

There is one thing the prolonged depression has done that can be put down on the credit side. It has almost stopped the expensive trips to Europe and other parts of the world. Our people are seeing America and America is worth seeing. Our national parks during the last summer had vastly more visitors than ever before. Yellowstone Park had 72 per cent more visitors than any year since it was established. Last winter Florida had its biggest year in the way of winter tourists, as did also Southern California. The reason for this probably is two-fold. In the first place the great masses of the people do not think they can afford to spend large sums and yet the desire to go somewhere still exists. Another reason is that a trip to Europe costs almost double what it did 18 months ago because of the devaluation of the gold dollar to 59 cents. This means when the tourist takes his money to exchange it into the money of any of these countries, he finds that he can only receive 59 cents of his dollar in the currencies of Europe. Therefore, if a European trip 18 months ago would cost $1,000 it will now cost something more than $1,450. As evidence that the above reasons are affecting Trans-Atlantic tourists, I note that Sept. 5th when two of the finest passenger vessels plying between New York and Europe—the Olympic and the Empress of Britain—landed at Cherbourg the Olympic had two first class passengers, 14 tourists and 17 third class passengers. The Empress of Britain had a little better with 40 passengers in all, six of them first-class passengers. These were the lowest records in the history of Trans-Atlantic passenger carrying in more than 50 years. To get some idea of how much the owners lost on these trips can be imagined when the crew of one of these—the Olympic—numbers 964 and the other carries a crew of 897.

Two Pillows and a Silver Ring

There is something quite pathetic to be found in an abstract of title to a small home in my county. It is the will of the wife of the man who owned it. She died a few years ago and the husband in endeavoring to secure a loan had the abstract made. The will is short in which this woman disposed of her earthly possessions. "Being of sound mind and disposing memory" she willed one of her feather pillows to her beloved daughter and the other feather pillow to a very dear sister. To her daughter she also gave her silver wedding ring and adds: "These are all I possess and I bequeath them in loving memory of the many kindnesses bestowed upon me during my many months of sickness." I do not know why she thought it necessary to make the will but it is on record in the county clerk's office and is part of the permanent archives. Two feather pillows and a silver wedding ring! A lifetime's accumulation!

He Was Game

No matter what one may think of the wisdom of Admiral Byrds self-banishment 127 miles from another human being, in a lonely house built from ice, this does not detract from the courage he exhibited when the crisis came. He became sick, seriously so. He had a radio by which he could summon his companions to come to his rescue. But the winter in the Antarctic was especially severe, the snow had fallen many feet thick covering dangerous crevasses, the thermometer was at from 40 to 80 below zero. He knew, as probably no other man in all the world knew, the dangers that would beset a rescue party. And so he decided to die if need be rather than endanger the lives of others. He grew so weak he could no longer use the radio and his friends knew he was in some kind of trouble. After two failures to reach him, with almost impossible conditions, the third attempt was successful. They found the Admiral near unto death and it took weeks to get him so he could be taken back to the base where there was comparative comfort. Men who undertake these great explorative expeditions must have hearts of iron. Admiral Byrd's name will rank along with the greatest of them.

What He Has Missed

A man in Tyler, Texas, had his sight restored the other day after 16 years of total blindness. When asked what change he saw that mostly impressed him, he said: "The way the women dress is simply awful." And yet the year that man lost his sight—1918—was when the flapper was in all her glory. Certainly the women are not dressing now as boldly as they did when darkness came to him. It is true that the styles did for several years after 1918 show more and more anatomy, but really the fashions now are demure compared with 1922 to 1928. That Tyler man missed seeing a lot during his years of blindness.

A Great Reason for Voting

The general election in November so far as Texas is concerned will be simply a ratification of the dominant party's nominations. Therefore, there will be disposition on the part of the voters not to bother about going to the polls. But if the voters will study the constitutional amendments that will be voted on at that time they are likely to see a greater reason for voting than they did in the primary election. The primary was largely a contest that involved the personality of the candidates and had little to do with the real government of the State. But the constitutional amendments affect the taxpayers pocket. For example: These amendments will enable the counties to abolish three offices, and, in my opinion, without loss in the efficiency of county government. We have already consolidated the offices of county tax collector and assessor, greatly saving the expense of maintaining two officers when one could do the work. The amendments we will vote on in November will abolish the office of district clerk, combining the duties of that office with that of the county clerk. Other amendments will eliminate the offices of county treasurer and county surveyor. The duties of these offices can be absorbed by other officials without the least loss of efficiency. Then one of the amendments broadens the powers of the commissioners court and empowers it to set the salaries of all precinct officers. These consolidations of offices will not appeal to the office holders but it seems to me the taxpayers should grasp anything that will lessen tax burdens.

One of the amendments, if adopted, will do away with what most people think is the abominable fee system. Undoubtedly there is a great injustice in any system that fines a man one dollar for some slight offense and the officer's fees increases that dollar to eighteen to twenty-five dollars. In my county a crap shooter is fined a dollar but he has to pay $18.50 or go to jail. One justice of the peace in a Texas city last year received $45,824 in fees, while the State and county received less than $500 in fines. In one county in this State a justice of the peace has been averaging $600 a month for two years by fining the unemployed men who have been riding freight trains. And the men who are fined have no money, but serve out their fines in jail while the county pays the officers their fees.

We can stop this by voting the amendment.

The Fee System

The argument in favor of the fee system is that it makes the officers more diligent in enforcing the law. That may be true in some cases. The prospect of fat fees has caused the arrest of thousands of negro crap shooters, but I doubt if these arrests have improved the morals of the communities. I believe by paying an officer a salary consistent with that paid the average citizen who elects him, will get honest, competent men who will conscientiously enforce the laws which need strict enforcement.

"We Love You, Daddy"

The papers have carried a news item that all motorists should read. One night a few weeks ago, on a lonely road in one of the Eastern States, a motor car with a rioting crowd was going at a terrific speed and was on the wrong side of the road. A lone pedestrian trudging along the country road undoubtedly heard the oncoming car, but trusting to the rule of the road he thought himself safe. Or possibly the blinding lights confused him. He was struck by the car, hurled almost a hundred feet, and lived only a few moments after the occupants of the car came to where his broken body lay. He remained unconscious until the end. The driver of the car was not heartless—just careless. He said out on that rarely traveled road he did not think it made any difference which side of the road he directed his car. The coroner was summoned and the contents of the dead man's pockets showed no money but they found a crumpled telegram which read: "We love you, daddy. When are you coming home?" The body, held for several days, was buried in the Potter's field. The little girl who sent the telegram (it was signed Marie) never saw her daddy again because the driver of a car didn't think it necessary to follow the first rule of traffic—keep to the right. Daddy was evidently looking for work and it may be that telegram had caused him to set his steps toward home. "We love you, daddy. When are you coming home?" A sweet though pathetic message!

The Department of Commerce has just issued a statement that for the first six months of this year the number of deaths from auto accidents shows that there have been 6,000 more fatalities than there were during the same period last year. The statement said if the same ratio kept up the balance of the year that approximately 40,000 persons would die from this cause. Some few States seem to be awakening to the seriousness of the situation and have enacted laws that have materially reduced such accidents. But none of these States are in the Southwest. A locomotive engineer in order to qualify himself to guide a train along the rails must serve years of apprenticeship as fireman, but any 15-year-old child can take the steering wheel of a high-powered motor car and go on to the streets and highways with no rails to guide. Men known to be addicted to the use of liquor are driving automobiles, and are arrested every day, but not generally until an accident has occurred. No matter how one looks at the liquor question, we require the engineer who acts in the cab to be sober, yet the drunken driver of a motor car is a more dangerous individual. We will do something about seeing that only reliable persons handle the steering wheel—but when?

"Uncle Sam," the Story-Teller and Duellist

By JOE SAPPINGTON

322 South 4th Ave., Waco, Texas.
(Copyright, 1934, by the Home Color Print Co.)

UNCLE Sam Dover and I were boon companions, although he was 50 years my senior and had gray whiskers a foot long. In the presence of Aunt Sallie, his wife, who outweighed him 60 pounds, he was meek and cautious in conversation, but away from her he would turn himself loose, so to speak, and recount some of his most daring escapades. He told me confidentially one day while we were hunting squirrels that he was on good terms with the James and Younger boys and had been offered $10,000 by the government to give information leading to their capture but had spurned the offer as unworthy of his magnanimous nature.

If I could remember all the hair-raising stories Uncle Sam told me when I was a small boy and could put them into book form, it would make interesting reading. As a sample of Uncle

Sam's dare-devil adventures, I will relate the following story:

"Joe, I shore hope you'll never have to fight a duel," he remarked one day after lighting his pipe and casting his hook into one of Cave Creek's best fishing holes. "But, if you must fight, I want to tell you how to act. Be calm, don't get excited and always make the other feller challenge you, fur that will give you choice of weepins."

Stranger Looking for Trouble

"Why, Uncle Sam," I interrupted, "did you ever fight a duel?"

"Why don't you ask me how many I have fit instid of astin' me if I ever fout one."

"When did you fight your last duel, Uncle Sam?" I asked.

"Now, lemme see," he mused, "I have fit so many it's hard to keep up with 'em; the last one I fout wuz over that rich girl I wuz engaged to and shot the pistil outen the feller's hand. No, that wazn't the last one. Now, it comes to me. It was that stranger who come ridin' into our town lookin' fur trouble jist after the war. He was wearin' two six-shooters and looked so desperit that most of the men who wuz in Bill Thompson's store when he arriv scattered out. He tried to raise a fuss with three or four of our citizens afore he jumped me, but they wuz afeard of him and taken his insults. Finally, seein' me, he come over to whar I wuz talkin' about the war with some of the boys and ast me my name.

"My name, suh, is Sam Dover, an' I'm not ashamed of it, nuther," I said, drawin' myself up to full highth an' lookin' 'im squar in the eye as I spoke.

"Oh, yes," he replied, you air the feller what killed all them Yankees, to hear you tell it."

"Stranger," I come back at him, "all the Yankees I ever killed wuz on the battlefield while facin' me. I have my fust man to shoot in the back or from behine a brush pile, which I'm shore is more'n you can say, you yaller-eyed polecat. Then I calmly turned my back on 'im."

"Let the Coward Shoot!"

"Lookout, Sam," some one shouted as he drew his pistil an' pinte it at me. "Let the coward shoot, fur that's carryin' out what I said about a human polecat." I replied, without batin' an eye. "That remark seemed to upsit 'im a leetle, an' he come over to whar I wuz standin' and challenged me to a duel." Uncle Sam refilled his pipe, lifted his hook baited it with a fresh worm, and resumed his story.

"Bein' the one challenged, Joe, as I told you at the start, give me choice of weepins, how fur apart we wuz to stand, an' the time the duel wuz to come off. You ought to have saw his eyes stick out when I said we would fight in a vacant lot behine the Thompson store, 20 feet apart with pistils, the fight to take place in 10 minutes by Bill Thompson's watch. 'Git your seconds, says I, an' foller me.'"

"Colonel Brown, my ole army officer, said in a firm tone of voice that he would act as my second. The onery cuss tried to crawfish out of it by sayin' he had no frien to act as his second. But I wuz determined to make 'im fight and' told 'im we would have no seconds an' that Colonel Brown would give the word to fire.

Calm and Cool

"I can see that cowardly coyote now standin' fur tremblin' from head to foot as he faced me while I wuz as calm as calm could be."

"Git ready, men," called out the Colonel. Take aim and fire at the count of five." But that dern scoundrel wuz so afeard that he came in a gnats bristle of shootin' one of his big toes off before the Colonel counted three.

"You know, Joe, when blood is shed that settles a duel. After he shot his pistil intentional at his toe, I told him to stan still if he didn't want to die with his boots on, an' then perceeded to shoot a small nick outen his left ear, jist nuff to make it bleed a leetle, and to show it wuz a reglar shore nuff duel."

"Say, Uncle Sam, that rich young lady you fought a duel over, was that Aunt Sallie, your wife?"

"No, Joe, your Aunt Sallie don't know nothin' 'bout my duels an' if you go blabin' it to her I'll never go fishin' an' huntin' with you agin."

More than likely Aunt Sallie died in course of time not knowing that Uncle Sam, in his younger days, was a real he-devil, a famous duelist and crack shot with six-shooter.

CANNING PLANT EXHIBIT

A government canning plant in full operation will be a novel exhibit at the South Texas State Fair at Beaumont, October 25 to November 4, inclusive. The fair grounds, long considered one of the most beautiful in the State, have been beautified further by many improvements to buildings and acreage. With completion of Highway 40 from the Heart of Texas into Beaumont, as well as extensive improvements of this highway, officials of the fair expect a larger attendance than usual this year.

SUSPECTED MONUMENT STOLEN

Denton officers are looking for a man who apparently has assumed the role of a tombstone thief. A brass marker, weighing 300 pounds, was found on a truck and stolen from the yard of a Denton monument company.

HIGHEST PEAK OFFICE IN TEXAS

Freight, at the Guadalupe mountains, near Van Horn, at an altitude of about 8,000 feet, is the highest postoffice in Texas. The town consists chiefly of a government station that reports weather in the mountains.

FARMERS MARKING RAILROAD TIES

Thousands of railroad ties are being found by trespassing farmers along between Beaumont and Longview, some of the farmers are marking ties from lumber on their own and others are given similar employment by landowners.

THINKS RATTLE IN YEARS OLD

A rattle of the jutey woods in the Beeches river bottom, near Kirbyville, says it is positive that a rattlebush killed near that town, 61 inches long and four inches in diameter, was 30 years old despite the fact it had 20 joints and a button. It weighed 20 pounds.

HILLBORN BREAKS TWINE RECORD

Five sets of twine were born in Hillborn during August, setting a monthly record not only for that town but possibly for any town of similar population in the state. One set of twine died shortly after birth. The others give promise of living "to a ripe old age."

NATURALIZATION FEES REDUCED

American naturalization fees at Laredo have been reduced 50 per cent, and registration fees out from $25 to $10. Because of this a large number of Mexican residents of that city and Webb county are preparing to become American citizens. Many Mexicans applying for papers have been residents of that county for several years.

MUSEUM ENLARGE MUSEUM

The pioneer museum at Bandera will have to be enlarged to twice its present size. It has received so many frontier relics from early settlers that present size of the native stone building is insufficient to display them to advantage. The museum was established and is maintained by J. M. Hunter, newspaper publisher of Bandera.

CLAIMS GRANDMOTHER HONORS

Mrs. Thomas Todd, 35 years old, of the Twitty community, near Shamrock, is credited with being the youngest grandmother in that section of the state. Her grandchild is Billy Leon Clay, whose mother, Mrs. Bryce Clay, is 15 years old. Mrs. Todd would like to hear from other Texas grandmothers who might claim to be younger than she is.

BUSINESS FAILURES DECREASE

There were but 17 business failures in Texas during August, as against twice that number a year ago. In July this year there were only 17 business failures. Liabilities totaled $109,000, or 20 per cent under July and 73 per cent less than August last year. Total assets of the 17 firms that failed in August were $107,000, against $23,000 for an equal number in July.

FIVE BEARS TOO MANY

"Five bears in one week on our ranch are too many bears," complained County Commissioner H. L. Kokernot, Jr., of Fort Davis. He said he saw that many bears in one week while going over the Kokernot ranch holdings. He came upon one bear eating a freshly killed calf and could not legally shoot the predator without a State permit to kill bear out of season.

STUDENTS ERECTING RECREATION HALL

A recreation hall is being erected on the campus of the West Texas State Teachers' College at Canyon by male students. Native stone and petrified wood will be used in the construction. Furniture is to be mainly home made, of heavy lumber suitable to the general style of the hall. A desert garden, 122 by 44 feet, will be laid out in connection with the building.

MOSQUITOES RING IN TENOR, SOPRANO AND BASS

Dr. C. F. Coogler, malariologist for the United States Public Service, with headquarters at Washington, D. C., on a recent visit to Houston said:

"Like humans, no two mosquitoes ring exactly alike. We have made tests on these insects and find some ring tenor, some soprano, some bass, and so on. Not only do different species sing differently, but individual insects of the same species have different songs. The impression that singing mosquitoes do 'not bite' is wrong; they bite as badly as silent ones. It is true anopheles, the malaria-carrying species of the mosquito family, is less noisy than other mosquitoes."

POSTMASTER 25 YEARS

Osceola Hunt, postmaster at Canyon for 25 years, went in under a Roosevelt (Lefley) and went out under a Roosevelt (Franklin D.) administration. Mr. Hunt held six commissions under five Republican Presidents, and his term was extended on two occasions by Democratic administrations.

NEW CHARTERS SHOW GAIN

During August 121 charters were granted in Texas, with a capitalization of $1,200,000. The August record was an increase of 11.4 per cent over July, a decline of 1 per cent from August last year. Fifty-six of the corporations were capitalized for $5,000 or more.

"PAGE IS PAGE"

Leonard Wright, a dairy farmer living west of Floresville, is owner of a named Poland China and Duroc sow three years old that has had 45 pigs, in four litters, according to K. W. Bentz, a newspaper writer. The first litter totaled 16 pigs, the second 14, the third 15 and the fourth 14.

TWO CROPS FROM SAME VINE

E. L. Brown, a farmer in the Blackwater Valley, near Minsterville, this season harvested a crop underground and above ground from the same plant at the same time. Above ground Mr. Brown picked tomatoes; underground he dug white potatoes from the same vine. He calls the vine a "mulligan-away."

GIRL KILLS 28 SNAKES

Miss Nell Owen, a high school girl who lives on the Owen ranch near San Saba, killed with a rifle 28 water moccasins which she encountered near a water tank. The snakes measured from six inches to slightly more than three feet. Miss Owen says some of the larger tried to protect the smaller reptiles by opening their mouths for the little ones to crawl into.

MAIL CARRIER WEARS OUT 15 VEHICLES

In the more than 25 years that W. T. Kandle was rural mail carrier out of Denator he wore out eight buggies and seven automobiles delivering mail on his route. When retired a short time ago Kandle said he felt physically able to wear out several more automobiles. For 22 years Mr. Kandle carried mail on the same Wise county route.

RETURN TO TEXAS AFTER 43 YEARS

J. F. Walters of Huntsville, Tenn., returned to Amarillo recently after an absence of 43 years. When he left Amarillo it was a cow-town of about 600 inhabitants. Last census rates Amarillo's population at 43,132.

"When I went to the Plains country in February, 1850, it was plenty cold, and it had not rained for two years," Mr. Walters said. "Fourteen saloons, 11 gambling houses and 600 persons constituted all there was of Amarillo when the midnight train pulled in with me as a passenger. But it was a real western settlement."

"HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF"

The old adage that "history repeats itself," is believed by Maury Maverick, Democratic nominee from the new Twenty-first Congressional district. His grandfather, Samuel A. Maverick, at the age of 31, was the first Congressman from the district of Bexar in the Congress of the Republic of Texas. Almost 100 years later the younger Maverick was nominated in the district which comprises Bexar only. The old Fourteenth included several counties adjacent to and including Bexar. It was the only Texas district to send a Republican to Congress.

BATTLE OF SAN JACINTO WIDOWS MAY ATTEND CENTENNIAL

The only two surviving widows of the men who fought in the Battle of Jacinto, which turned the tide for Texas colonists in 1836, will attend the Centennial celebration in 1936 if health permits. The widows are Mrs. Mary Catherine Berry, who lives near Baird, and Mrs. Mary M. Price of Rochester, N. Y. Mrs. Berry, 81, is the widow of Andrew Jackson Berry, and Mrs. Price, 90, was the wife of Hardy W. B. Price, a member of Benjamin F. Bryant's company. They would be the guests of the State of Texas.

PELLAGRA IN TEXAS CAUSED 645 DEATHS

According to the State Health Department pellagra, a disease caused by lack of proper foods, caused 645 deaths in Texas last year. It comes on slowly and may not be recognized until the victim begins to have sore mouth, stomach trouble and reddening and scaling of the skin. The longer a person has pellagra the harder the cure. The disease may become so severe as to affect the mind; it is not contagious, and can be prevented by eating the right kind of foods. Diet should include plenty of milk daily, some fresh meat and as many fresh vegetables as possible.

"TAVEL PLAY" SUSPECTED

Ed Dunaway, a railroad man living near Palestine, suspected "Tavel play" when he began losing chickens, so he set a trap on a fence post. Next morning he found an owl caught in the trap, which measured 34 inches in wing spread.

MARKING FUTURE WIFE

Justice W. A. Matthews of Denton is all smiles over the repeal of the so-called "pin marriage" law, which required a three-day notice of intention to marry. While the law was in effect Justice Matthews was called upon only 14 times to perform the marriage ceremony. Since repeal of the law he has married more than 100 couples.

AUTO REGISTRATIONS INCREASE

New passenger automobile registrations continue to make favorable gains over last year. Registrations in 15 counties, representing all parts of Texas, totaled 4,674 in August, against 4,607 in the corresponding month in 1933, a gain of 4 per cent. For the first eight months of this year registrations totaled 35,332, a gain of 42.5 per cent over the same period last year.

LOVE WRECKS WAGON

Austin Doubtless, living near Temple, tied his 950-pound mule to a wagon. The animal got tired standing still and started to walk away, pulling along the wagon, which had been parked on a hill. The wagon, gathering momentum as it descended the hill, dragged the mule until wagon and mule went over a 20-foot embankment. The animal escaped without injury, but the wagon was wrecked.

Herbert Mills, Jr., of Sterling City, Texas, is the new president of the State Association of Future Farmers of America. There are 7,000 Texas farm boys in the association. The State Department of Agricultural Education at Austin will pay Mr. Mills' expenses to the National Convention of Future Farmers at Kansas City in October, to be held in connection with the American Royal Livestock Show.

LAREDO DUTIES SHOW INCREASE

Imports of merchandise from Mexico through the customs port at Laredo during August showed an increase of 120 per cent over collections for imports in August, 1933, says Adolph B. Kahn, deputy collector of customs in charge of imports. Collections in August, 1933, were approximately $17,000, while those for August this year were about $35,000. Among the imports were many carloads of corn, bananas and other Mexican products which found a ready market in the United States.

GETS GASOLINE FROM HIS OWN WELL

G. L. Hart, a Burnet grocer, doesn't care whether gasoline prices go up or down, for he has his own "filling station" in the form of a well sunk some years ago for water and which is now producing gasoline of sufficient purity to be used in his automobile. About three months ago water in the well began to get "gassy" after heavy blasting at the site of the Hamilton dam project, near Burnet. Flow of gasoline into the well has so increased that Mr. Hart recovers the fluid by lowering a bucket slowly into the 18-foot well. The well produces from one to 12 gallons of gasoline every 24 hours.

TEXAS MAY MANUFACTURE DOGWOOD SHUTTLES

Texas may compete with Louisiana in the manufacture and exportation of dogwood shuttles for the textile industry, not only in the United States but foreign countries. There is a vast amount of dogwood trees in various sections of the State, especially in East Texas. This wood has been found highly suitable for the manufacture of textile shuttles. Texans are watching carefully the Dogwood Shuttle Block Mills, a new and profitable industry of the Louisiana Public Utilities Company at Leesville, La. Dogwood is practically valueless in the world's market as commercial timber except for use in manufacture of shuttles for the textile industry. In cut-over lands, which usually have a plentiful undergrowth of this wood, the cutting of shuttle timber should prove profitable.

NOT HIS "LAST ROUNDUP"

Out of Sweetwater comes the story of a government-purchased dog that refused to die when shot and left for dead. The animal, condemned by a Federal agent, was shot and the owner compensated. A few hours later the calf, supposed to be dead, was seen walking around and eating grass.

STEER STRANGLED BY GRAPEVINE

Driven by curiosity of range land to eat green leaves at the edge of a ravine, a 2-year-old steer on a Gillespie county ranch, near Kerrville, lost its footing and strangled to death in falling when its neck was caught between a very grapevine and an oak tree. When the owner found the steer after it had been missing two days, its legs were dangling down a steep bank with grapevine twined around neck and horns.

WAS BELLE OF TACOSOA

A short time ago Mrs. Mickey McCormick, the sole resident of old Tacosoa, in the Panhandle, celebrated her 80th birthday. Mrs. McCormick was the belle of Tacosoa in the days of "Bully the Kid" when the six-shooter was the law in the Texas Panhandle. From the front door of Mrs. McCormick's home she can see Boot Hill cemetery, a famous burial ground for men who were slow on the draw.

TEXAS BLUE BELLS IN DEMAND

Texas Blue Bells which grow in such profusion, especially in Montgomery county, are in demand throughout the Northern section of the United States. They are gathered for Conroe florists by persons who pick, strip and pack them for shipment. One month this fall the shipments from Conroe averaged 15,000 flowers daily. Some went as far East as Boston and others to Spokane, Wash.

MAKES RESTITUTION

Coleman White, a Memphis, Texas, glazier received a letter in which was enclosed a $5 bill and the following: "Mr. White, bear is $5.00 I beat you out of. I am sending it to you. I sold you some cotton."

A couple of months ago W. L. Wheat of the same city, received a letter with $7 enclosed. The writer said "he had cheated Mr. Wheat out of that sum; that his conscience hurt him and he wanted to make amends."

SEABIRD SANCTUARY

There is a seabird sanctuary on Green Island, off the lower Rio Grande Valley coast, where the American egret is protected by the United States government. John O. Larsen of Harlingen, caretaker, is authorized to protect the island and its birds as a United States deputy game warden. He says he does not have much trouble protecting the birds from persons who visit the island, but is bothered by coyotes who swim from the mainland to prey on the birds.

DOES A TOAD CROAK?

Austin police have been called upon to decide if a toad can croak like a bullfrog. A woman complained that the croaking of bullfrogs in a neighbor's yard kept her awake. The neighbor said he had moved his frog farm out into the country, and that the croaking the woman heard came from toads that had hopped into his back yard, uninvited. The woman insisted that toads do not croak. San Antonio police said they would read up on the habits of toads and frogs and decide the case later.

DENGUE FEVER WARNING

Dengue fever has made its appearance in Texas, and will continue to spread until checked by frost. In the last 50 years Texas has had three epidemics of the disease, the last one in 1922. The disease is seldom fatal, does not last long, but convalescence is slow. Dengue is characterized by sudden onset, headache and pain in the back and limbs, especially the joints. It is caused by bites of the same mosquito that transmits yellow fever. To prevent dengue, places where mosquitos propagate should be eliminated.

RANGERS CRIPPLED BY LAWS

Texas rangers of today have the same desire to "get their man" as did rangers who served the State in "wild and woolly" days. But department officials at Austin, replying to comments that rangers do not seem as effective now as years ago, lay the blame on too many laws enacted in recent years. One law limits each ranger to 500 miles per month in chasing criminals, which restricts his activities. The State reimburses the ranger for 500 miles of travel in his own car, but after 500 miles he must travel at his own expense. The State furnishes the ranger no automobile, so he has to bear the expense of getting his own car torn up in a wreck or riddled by bandit bullets. Salary is too small to permit a ranger "digging into his own pocket" to catch a criminal. The limit of mileage, it is pointed out, is the reason rangers cannot follow the trail of a criminal like Clyde Barrow, for which the force was criticized for not catching.

REAL "BONE DRY" TOWN

Davilla, in Milam county, is said to be the oldest bone dry town in Texas. At the close of the war between the States, El J. Chamberland went to Milam county and purchased a tract of land from the M. Davilla estate. He laid out a town and sold lots with a provision in the deed that intoxicating beverages should never be sold there. Courts have held that such a provision is a deed in binding.

BRADY'S GAS LINE

For a city with a population of less than 5,000, Brady has the longest natural gas transmission line in the State. The gas is piped 45 miles from the Junction field in Brown county by the Empire Southern Gas Company. The transmission main is six and four inches, respectively, in diameter, with five additional miles of gathering lines between the wells, representing an investment of approximately $225,000.

ERECTING LOOK-OUT TOWERS

Forty look-out towers are being erected in East Texas, on top of which men will keep a day and night vigil for forest fires. Hundreds of miles of telephone wires will connect the towers, cities and towns in close proximity so alarms may be given and aid asked to fight fires. The work is being done by recruits from East Texas CCC camps. The tower in Forest Reserve No. 1, five miles east of Kirbyville, is said to be the first erected in Texas. It is 50 feet tall, built of steel and gives the look-out a vista of 50 miles in all directions. Another tower, higher than the first, is being erected 13 miles north of Kirbyville.

BLOOD TRANSFUSION SAVES EDITOR

A blood transfusion is credited with the saving the life of G. E. Watford, 68, veteran Texas publisher, who retired several months ago after sale of the Lufkin Daily News. C. S. Boyles, Jr., and Jack McDermott, his successors, and two other members of the News staff, were among a dozen citizens who offered blood and submitted to tests. Joe Thompson, 21, member of the newspaper staff, was the only one found acceptable, and he gave a pint of his blood. Thompson began his newspaper career under Mr. Watford. "It just had to be somebody with a little printer's ink in his veins," mused Mr. Watford after the operation.

CONVICTS MAKING LICENSE PLATES

Automobile license plates for 1935 of all Texas motor cars will be a product of the penitentiary at Huntsville. They will be ready for delivery February 15, 1935. County tax collectors will receive 1,389,000 pairs of the plates, to be attached to all vehicles on or before April 1. Material for the work, including 25 carloads of sheet metal, enamel paint and shipping boxes, has been contracted for at a cost in excess of $50,000. Machinery to make the plates, bought by the State, cost about $30,000. There will be eight different colors for that many types of motor vehicles. Passenger car plates are estimated at 1,100,000; these plates will have white numerals on a maroon background. Quantities and colors of other types are: commercial vehicles, 150,000, green numbers on gray background; farm vehicles, 75,000, black on orange; trailers, 40,000, orange on black; dealers, 6,500, black on green; motor buses, 1,500, gray on green; tax exempt (government owned) autos, trucks and trailers, 12,000, white on black; motor cycles, 4,000, black on orange, and sidecars, 500, orange on black.

BOW AND ARROW INDUSTRY

Floyd Pope of Woodville makes bows and arrows that kill big game in the United States and foreign countries. They are much in demand in England and Australia. Until recently most of his bows, the wood of which is seasoned three years before manufactured into bows, was made of bois-d'arc which in Indian means "wood of the bow." At present Mr. Pope is fashioning his bows from the fir timbers of Seattle's first schoolhouse, built in 1840. When the schoolhouse was razed the Texan laid in a supply of its seasoned wood. The arrows, tipped with steel, are feathered mostly from Tyler county turkeys, although wild turkey feathers are preferred for this purpose. In Mr. Pope's workshop is a picture from the New York Times rotogravure section showing Art Young, the celebrated American archer, squatted beside a slain moose, killed with bow and arrow made in Mr. Pope's workshop. Pope says Young has killed three Rocky Mountain grizzlies, two Alaskan grizzlies, two polar bears, a walrus, an eland (largest species of antelope), three lions and many deer with bows and arrows. Sir Phillip Middleton of London is one of Mr. Pope's best customers. He has other customers in Sydney, Melbourne and Copenhagen. When Stewart Edward White, the well known archer, went big game hunting in Africa he was accompanied by Mr. Young. In its jungles the two bagged several lions with Texas made bows and arrows.

NO DUES ARE ASSESSED

The Panhandle Livestock Association is one organization of large membership in Texas that assesses no dues. Jay Taylor, president, thus explains:

"For several years after the association was organized, dues were charged, and charged was right. But the dues were hard to collect. So we just decided to quit that part of it. When we have to have funds for some important purpose, we get a bunch of cowmen together and raise it. We have raised as much as $1,200 in 15 minutes."

The association, which takes in all of the Panhandle and parts of Oklahoma and New Mexico, has a membership of more than 3,000.

HIGHER TURKEY PRICES SEEN

It is going to cost more to grace the Thanksgiving and Christmas tables with turkeys this year than last season, so growers and produce dealers say. And as might be expected they blame the drought. The early hot weather killed the bugs upon which the young turkeys later should have fed, with the result that there are not as many of them ready for market today as there was a year ago. But there is the consoling tip that when it comes to flavor—or quality—the birds this season will be above the average.

PROGRESS IN ARTIFICIAL LIMBS

At the Texas State Fair, this year, there will be one exhibit of interest not only to those who have suffered an amputation of an arm or a limb, but also to physicians and all others who are interested in observing the progress of science in developing devices and appliances to enable man to overcome the disabilities occasioned by accident or disease.

This year's exhibit of the Hedgecock Artificial Limb & Brace Co., of Dallas, which is the oldest and largest manufacturer of artificial limbs and braces in Texas, will trace the development of artificial limbs from the heavy, cumbersome affairs of a few years ago, down to the artificial limbs of today, so light, so easy of operation, as to enable the wearer to do almost anything that anyone else can do. And, included in their exhibit will be some newly perfected appliances which will be shown this year, for the first time, and which embody some remarkable improvements over those now commonly used.

OIL MILL FOR PECOS

As a direct result of the impending construction of the Red Bluff irrigation and power project, a large cotton oil mill is to be erected at Pecos. The site has been selected. The plant will be built by J. W. Simmons, Dallas; L. T. Lewis, Roswell, N. M.; R. M. Simmons, Sweetwater; O. O. Stewart, Loving, N. M.; and R. K. Wotten, Chickasha, Okla., cotton mill operators who have plants in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico. The mill will be ready for operation as soon as the first crop is produced under the dam project, and will be large enough to take care of all cotton produced in the Pecos and Toyah valleys, where some 110,000 acres will be subject to irrigation under the project.

TOM MIX DELIGHTS CRIPPLE

A bed-ridden Childress youngster, Earl Michie, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Michie, received the thrill of a lifetime several weeks ago when Tom Mix, movie star idol of American youth, paid him a visit. Mr. Mix was in Childress with a circus. When he learned of the youth he went to his home and spent several minutes with him. The boy received a broken neck in a fall and will be confined to his bed for several months.

HAIL DRIVES MAN TO COVER

O. H. Raggett, a farmer near Amarillo, was forced to seek shelter under his cultivator recently to keep from being beaten to death by hail. He was working in his field when the storm suddenly appeared. The hail frightened his team, which ran until it encountered a fence. Mr. Raggett, partially stunned by the large stones, was forced to crawl under the iron seat of his cultivator to protect himself.

WEEKLY EXCLUSIVELY FOR CHILDRESS

Residents of Childress now have a weekly, The Childress Chronicle, a newspaper circulated exclusively within the corporate limits. Its initial issue appeared September 14 from the press of Childress County News. It is said to be the only newspaper in the State with circulation restricted to the confines of a city or town. Reading matter of the Chronicle is to interest only local residents of Childress. The News continues as a county weekly.

A LITTLE FUN Jokes to Make You Laugh

Relativity

"What is the 'relativity' idea I hear so much about?"
"Well, it's like this. When you sit with a smart pretty girl for an hour you think it's only a minute, but if you sat on a hot stove for a minute you'd think it was an hour. That's relativity."

No Hobbies

"Has your husband any hobbies?" asked the new neighbor who was calling.
"No," said Mrs. Neuritch, "he has rheumatiz a good deal, and hives now and then, but he ain't never had no hobbies."

Uncle Si Perkins says Slim Slokum was so excited when he got married that he kissed the preacher and gave the bride ten dollars.

A Girl's Essay on Boys

A little girl wrote the following essay on boys: "Boys are men that have not got as big as their papas, and girls are women that will be ladies by-and-by. When God looked at Adam He said to Himself, 'Well, I think I can do better,' and He made Eve. Boys are a trouble. They wear out everything but soap. If I had my way the world would be girls and the rest dolls. My papa is so nice that I think he must have been a little girl when he was a little boy. Man was made, and on the seventh day he rested. Woman was then made, and she never rested since."

"Business Is Business"

Two Jews were in business together—Cohn and Rosenstein. Rosenstein had been getting drunk and letting the business go. Cohn said, "The next time Rosenstein comes in drunk, I'm going to shoot him." So he put a pistol in his pocket and waited for Rosenstein. Pretty soon Rosenstein came in, drunk as usual. Cohn pulled his pistol and put it in Rosenstein's face.
Rosenstein said, "How much do you want for the gun?"
Cohn said, afterward, "How could I kill the man when he was talking business?"

The California Way

New Resident: "I stopped over in San Juan and—"
Old Resident: "Pardon me, but you should say San Huan. In California we pronounce our J's like H's."
New Resident: "Well, you'll have to give me time. You see, I've been in the State only through Hune and Huly."

"Speaking of bathing in famous springs," said the tramp to the tourist, "I bathed in the spring of '86."

Too Heavy for the Ducks

A housewife of good intentions, but with little culinary knowledge, decided to try her hand at dumplings. Members of her household wouldn't eat the dumplings, so she threw them to the ducks in disgust. A short time afterward two urchins tapped at her door. "I say, missus," they shouted, "your ducks have drowned!"

No Irish There

(Two Jews in a street car). First Jew: "I vill nefer go py Rockaway agaan fer de summer. Nothing but Irish everywhere."

Second Jew: "It's de same at Saratoga, Abey, it's alive mit Irish. I vish I could go vere dere was no Irish."

Mrs. Clancy (on the opposite seat): "Yez can both go to h—l; y'll find no Irish there."

Their First Child

It was their first child, the sweetest babe in the world and had to have a nice new baby carriage. The fond parents carried the babe to a furniture store, where they made selection of a carriage. Seating the babe in it, Harry wheeled it down the street. Soon they observed that some people smiled and some laughed outright. Harry gave the carriage into his wife's care, and then stepped back to see if anything was wrong. He was horrified to see that they had forgotten to remove the sale card, which bore this inscription in bold print:

"OUR OWN MAKE."

"Manufactured in Cincinnati, U.S.A."

Poultry Facts

Artificial Light

On account of shorter days and less time for the pullets and hens to eat plans should be made to overcome these handicaps of nature. Those so situated, to be able to do so, will find it profitable to resort to artificial light—electric or lamp—to lengthen the daylight hours, or to give the pullets and hens more time to eat. Give them as near as possible the artificial light long enough each day to equal daylight hours in April and May. Lengthening the day by artificial light simply means that the poultry will have a few more hours around the feed hoppers, assuring them enough feed so they can assimilate enough food to make more eggs. The light should be placed over the feed hoppers and water dishes. Be sure to see there are plenty of feed hoppers and that they are full of good egg mash. Poorly balanced egg mash are a waste of time and, although cheap, are poor economy. Increased feed consumption generally means increased egg-production. Eggs are bringing very profitable prices, but it will require hard work on your part as well as hard work on the part of the layers.

Wet Mash

We recommend giving one feeding a day of a crumbly mash, about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Make mash a crumbly consistency, if possible, use sweetmilk or buttermilk. Give all they will eat up clean in 30 minutes. Use the same mixture as given as a day mash in hoppers. The feeding of wet mash, now, is just another way of helping them get enough feed during the short winter days. They can pick up or eat the crumbly wet mash quicker than dry mash.

Comfortable Houses

The other day, in West Texas, I found a poultryman that provided heat during cold weather to his pullets and hens just like feed and water. He installed a brooder on a platform in the hen houses and when the layers felt cold they could go to the brooder to get warm, just like when they are hungry, they jump upon the trough for feed. These heaters also help keep the entire house more comfortable during cold weather. A few days of cold weather checks egg-production considerably, right at a time when eggs are worth real money. When installing a brooder in lay-house, bear in mind the importance of fire protection; also that the house is never over heated. Over heating would bring serious results and trouble.

Grain Feeding

See to it that your hens are fed so they can go to roost with a full crop. One of the best ways of accomplishing this is by giving a feeding of yellow corn an hour before dark. Give them all they will eat at that time. Nothing better than yellow corn. Kafir and milo may be fed, but are not as good.

"ALL IN"

AND THEN HE SMOKED A CAMEL!

"You, too, in those moments when you feel tired, cross, dispirited, will find that Camels give you a delightful 'lift' which quickly dispels fatigue and irritability. It's a 'lift' which you can enjoy at will, for Camel's costlier tobaccos never jangle the nerves."

"Get a LIFT with a Camel!"

CATCHES 40-POUND CAT-FISH

The largest fish ever caught in Lake Childress, near that city, was a 40-pound cat, pulled from the waters by Robert Caradine. The fish, which measured more than a yard in length, was caught with a small throwline. Two negroes assisted Mr. Caradine in landing the fish which was hooked in 10 feet of water. The cat is said to have been the largest fish ever caught in an artificial lake in the Panhandle.

TRAIN STALLED BY ARMY WORMS

A Fort Worth and Denver freight train was stalled near Estelline recently, following a hail storm, by millions of Army or Webb worms. When the train encountered the worms the wheels began to slip and the freight came to a stop. The crew examined the tracks and found them covered with millions of the worms, which had crawled out of the hail beaten weeds and grass.

MAN INDICTED 25 YEARS AGO DIES

A quarter of a century ago Walter McMahon of Kirbyville, was indicted in the slaying of Dan Cooper. He disappeared, and his whereabouts were unknown to authorities until a few weeks ago when his brother and sister received a telegram saying that Mr. McMahon had just died at Portland Ore.

ADmits STEALING CATTLE

Sixteen months ago Ernest Allen was placed in jail at Beaumont in connection with the theft of some cattle. A few days ago he decided to plead guilty. When arraigned before Judge R. L. Murray he was given a two-year suspended sentence.

For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil. Eccl. 12:14.

WHERE NUT TREES GROW BEST

Pecan trees will grow all the way from Southern Texas up the Mississippi Valley to Northern Iowa. But if an ambitious Iowa farmer thinks it would be wise to get seed or nursery stock of Texas pecans to plant in Iowa, he will make a serious mistake, experts on nuts declare. The same applies to black walnuts, which will grow farther North than the pecan, and to other nut-bearing trees. Regardless of species, plants are unlikely to be altogether hardy in any locality where minimum temperatures of winter are much lower, or where the growing season is much shorter than at the place where the variety originated.

For the planting of nut trees, it pays to follow the same general idea that has proved its worth with most field crops. Grafted varieties are preferable, but if these can not be afforded, then get adapted seeds from the best trees in the locality or, if it is necessary to obtain seed from a distant source, it should come from a place in the same general latitude as that where it is to be planted. For generations trees have adapted themselves to the growing season, and it is unwise to plant grafted varieties or seed from the South in a location materially farther to the North.

BABY BORN ON FAIR GROUNDS

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Nunn of Uvalde, are the parents of the first baby born on the fair grounds at Amarillo. They are connected with a show held in connection with the fair. Mrs. Nunn is only 16. Her mother, Mrs. Annie Lee Davis, by the birth of the boy, became a grandmother at 30.

The Old West Was Tough But "Dad" Outlived It

By J. D. TANNER

Pecos City, Oklahoma.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Home Color Print Co.)

F. (Dad) Knight of Tulsa, Okla., is an old pony express rider, who used to carry Uncle Sam's mail horseback between St. Louis and San Francisco, Fort Worth and El Paso. He knew Billy the Kid, Cole Younger, Jesse James, John Wesley Hardin and other bad men of the West.

As a pony express rider, he had hair-breadth escapes from hostile Indians, outlaws and swollen streams.

Knight was born in 1841, 100 miles north of St. Louis, on the banks of the Mississippi river. His father owned six steamboats that plied up and down the river, hauling passengers and freight. He spent his boyhood on Old Man River and knew every landing, every bend, shoal and sand bar that marked the river in earlier days.

When the first guns of the Civil War boomed, Knight lost his love for the river and became a pony express rider, trading a boat for a horse. His route lay along the far-flung frontier towns where he delivered mail to army posts, mining towns and ranch towns. He rode his horse at top speed, averaging about 10 miles per hour. The relay stations were about 20 miles apart, and Knight would get a fresh horse at each station.

Arrow in Neck

There were plenty of risks in the life of an express rider, Knight says. Trails were dim, wolves beset trails and sometimes he had to swim his horse across raging streams. Indians also harassed him. Several times the youthful rider thought he had come to the end of his last ride. An arrow once penetrated his neck, but by lying low in the saddle and riding hard he managed to escape the attack of a roving band of Comanches. He rode 26 miles to a settlement with that arrow in his neck before it could be cut out.

Fighting and eluding Indians were but a part of Knight's job. He also had to contend with outlaws who wanted to rob the mails. Sometimes he would carry $100,000 on a single trip. "Such things were all in the day's work," said Knight. "I didn't think much about it, for thinking did no good and didn't make the next ride any easier."

Knight made one run during September, 1870, that he believes set a new record of its kind. The ride was from Fort Worth, Texas, to El Paso, Texas. He was carrying messages for the government, since Comanches had destroyed all communication between the two cities. He followed the old government trail, detoured around Fort Chadbourne, and covered a total of 714 miles

The Kid's real name was William Bonney.

"There were several hundred dollars in my money belt to be used as deposits on wool," explained Knight. While riding down the Pecos river I met a fellow whom I knew to be Billy the Kid. He rode alongside and began questioning me. Wanted to know where I was going, if I had anything to eat, and if I had money? I did not dare to tell him I had money for fear he might put a bullet in my back. So I said:

"I have $3.85 and some grub."
"Then I proposed that we camp, cook something to eat, and rest a while (it was about sunset) and start riding again about midnight. Billy agreed to this, for he was dead tired and hungry. He didn't tell me his name, didn't know that I knew him, but I had seen the Kid often riding with his gang and knew him well."
"He lay on the ground and watched me closely, but said nothing while I fried

"By lying low in the saddle and riding hard he managed to escape the attack."

Meets Billy the Kid

Resigning from the pony express service, Knight went into New Mexico to "gather wool" for his father. It was there he met Billy the Kid face to face, some bacon and fixed the coffee. After we had eaten, I took my horse around back of a hill to 'stake him out.' I left on the horse saddle and bridle, so I could get going quickly when opportunity came.

Custer His Hero

"Billy was too tired and drowsy to be suspicious of me. Soon after I returned from staking my horse I laid down, feigning sleep. In a short time the Kid was snoring. I arose quickly, left some food for him, made my way to my horse and rode off as fast as I ever rode in my life."

"I didn't want to take any chances with Billy the Kid. He was a dangerous killer and killing another man meant little to him."

Of all the men Knight knew in the glamorous days of the old West, Custer is the one he talks about most.

"A grander man than Custer never lived," Knight says. "He was kind and gentle, but a fighter, too."

Knight has strong convictions as to why Custer and his men met their doom at the Battle of the Little Big Horn. It is sufficient to say that he does not believe Custer was at fault or was properly supported by other divisions.

"Dad" Knight is still a pretty good man physically for his age. He can read and write and keeps up his health with long walks. His philosophy is to look for the best in everything and take the world as God made it and not as man made it.

Water in a deeper pond is cooler, cleaner and more palatable to livestock. While ponds are dry, farmers can use a plow and slip scraper to deepen them as much as possible, adding the dirt removed to the dam with which to heighten or strengthen it. Such work may mean an ample water supply in future dry years.

Beginning November 1, farmers and stockmen in the primary drouth areas may get feed loan allowances for this year's heifer calves, ewe lambs and female kids in addition to allowances being made for mature stock.

Charles W. Sherrill, regional manager of the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Office at Dallas, says. The allowances will be made only on such stock which are retained primarily for breeding purposes; and in no event will allowances be made to feed larger number of young and mature stock in their respective classes than the number of mature breeding stock which were owned and possessed by the borrower on April 1, 1934, or on sheep owned within six months prior to that date.

TEXAS FARM REPORTS

Jesse Applin of Sharp has planted his second crop of corn, hoping he will have roasting ears in late fall.

Horseshoe manufacturers report business increasing, which indicates more farmers are going back to horses.

San Angelo turkey raisers report the turkey crop in that section 25 per cent short this year as compared with last year.

The lime-sulphur dip for treating scab on sheep is said to protect 33 days against re-infection and nicotine- and sulphur dip protects 69 days.

During its first year, from June 1, 1933, to May 31, 1934, the Farm Credit Administration loaned $1,257,000,000 to farmers; a daily average of $4,000,000.

Albert Cooksey of Pecos sold his undivided half interest in the Scarbauer and Cooksey ranch in Loving county to John Scarbauer of Midland, for $29,982.50 and other considerations.

Reports from nearly 21,000 farmers throughout the country show that an average of 87 hired men were employed on 100 farms on August 1, 1934, compared with 102 hired men on July 1, 1934.

Gherkins are raised instead of cucumbers by Mrs. W. P. Bryan of Bethany, near McKinney, because they have the same flavor as cucumbers and produce abundantly until frost.

About 1,000 green hides will be salted down for fall and winter tanning in Runnels county as a by-product of the condemned cattle bought in the government cattle-buying program.

Mrs. W. O. Coil, home demonstration woman in the White Deer Creek community, near Borger, gathered 1,250 cucumbers from vines in a garden 50 by 50 feet. She planted gourd vines and tall castor beans as a wind break.

Farmers in the Panhandle area have sent out a warning against grazing livestock in stunted broom-corn fields. Fourteen head on a farm near Littlefield became sick, and two died, after grazing in such a field.

Stinking smut of wheat and loose smut of oats mean reduced yields and reduced prices. This loss may be prevented by sowing only treated seed. The expenditure of a few cents per acre in seed treatment is good crop insurance, often preventing the loss of several dollars per acre.

A. J. Hoff, who runs a country store in Ander, Goliad county, said recently: "The cotton program is bringing results. Several accounts on my books which had run up to $150 and $200, and gone unpaid for a long time, have been paid in full this year. I am in favor of regulated production until everything is normal again."

Panhandle farmers are losing a large amount of money each year because of smutty wheat, according to Dr. R. J. Haskell, government plant disease specialist of Washington, D. C. With farmers restricted from raising a larger quantity of wheat, it is time for them to concentrate on improving quality, the expert says, declaring that cost of treating seed wheat to prevent disease is low compared with the loss from disease.

P. A. Hunter of Brooks county is building a new home from adobe. The hole from which the earth is being taken will be converted into a trench silo.

The coming of frost is likely to find many green tomatoes on the vines. One way to thwart the nipping touches of this annual visitor at autumn is to make green tomato sweet pickles.

Dr. S. H. Ayers, member of a concern that operates canneries in California and Florida, will establish a grapefruit juice canning plant at Weslaco this winter. It will have a daily capacity of 1,000 cases.

The Anson section--center of the cotton growing industry two years ago--is again producing a very fair cotton crop. Yields of one-fourth to half a bale to the acre are not unusual this year.

Co-operative selling and improved practices based on keeping a dairy demonstration record on her herd, enabled Mrs. Huntington of Alta Loma, in Galveston county to change from loss to profit in her business.

Irrigation is receiving much attention in Hale county following the drouth, which called attention to the value of irrigated tracts on every farm where water is available. It is believed much land there can be irrigated from shallow water wells at a profit.

Thirty-three Menard 4-H club calves being fed this year have out-gained all calves previously fed by the Menard club members. The calves weighed only an average of 218 pounds at the start, but at the end of the first 60-day period weighed an average of 365 pounds.

Celery seems to have come to Maverick county as a permanent crop. F. O. Weyrich has five acres of it already transplanted, which is in fine condition and compares favorably with that grown as a demonstration last year by Theodor Katakalis.

Trench silos may be the answer to the feed shortage. W. C. McClain, who lives near Stanton, in Martin county, is putting up maize stalks that have suckered heavily and will make good silage, whereas they would make tough and unappetizing hay.

Nortex oats secured from the Denton Experiment Station last fall by E. V. Kiser of the Lone Oak community, in Kaufman county, yielded an average of 54 bushels to the acre, while oats planted by his neighbor averaged not more than 25 bushels per acre.

Hundreds of tons of feed that could have been used to save cattle this winter wasted in the fields. Corn stalks that failed to make corn, or that had the ears removed, were lost by allowing them to stand and wither in the field. If harvested before withering and put in trench silos the stalks would have made palatable and nutritious feed.

W. J. Casey, the "corn king" of the Panhandle, who farms eight miles east of Dalhart, has proven to his satisfaction that land with sand dunes on it as a result of wind erosion is easily reclaimable. His farm consists of 9,000 acres. With a "crawler" type tractor, Mr. Casey drags a one-way plow straight over the dune and cuts it down at the rate of 18 to 20 inches at a cut. A "lister" is then put on the land and planting proceeds as in normal years. Mr. Casey has 8,200 acres of his land under cultivation. In 1930 he produced 100,000 bushels of corn on 6,000 acres.

The apple crop in the Highland section around Fort Davis is the best in five years. The apples are being trucked to all parts of Texas and are bringing growers a good return.

Hargis brothers of Eden have sold 4,600 acres of their Plant Springs ranch, five miles west of that town, to Alton Hall of San Angelo, for $60,000. Mr. Hall also bought 2,700 yearling ewes.

Estimates place the cash income from the sale of farm produces in July at $498,000,000, including $20,000,000 rental and benefit payments from AAA, and $11,000,000 for the emergency purchase of cattle in drouth areas.

Flat breaking the land before planting has so often produced at least twice as much as nearby land that was not so prepared, that Joe Gruy of Hebronville, has about decided to make this practice a part of his rental agreement.

One-third of a bale of cotton to the acre is being picked on the farm of Jewel Day of Haskell county, despite the drouth, while his neighbors are harvesting only one-fourth of a bale to the acre, or even less. Mr. Day attributes his larger yield to the fact that moisture in the ground was conserved by terracing done last spring.

Planting every third row in peanuts and corn proved a success on six acres of cotton grown by Dee Yancy on his bottom land farm near Mount Vernon, in Franklin county. He will have 1,000 pounds of cotton despite the drouth, has harvested three loads of peanut hay and has cut three loads of corn, which he will crush with other feed.

From the four corners of the globe strange plants are being brought to the rescue of the soil--West and eroded Southwest--including Texas--in the reclamation program of the Federal government. African watermelons, Australian salt brush, South African and Asiatic grasses, yuccas from Mexico, ephedra plants from China, olive trees from Russia, bushes from Turkistan--these will be introduced in an effort to bring back forage for stock and create watersheds on denuded hills and mountains in West Texas, Arizona, New Mexico, Utah and Nevada. The vegetation of almost every arid or semi-arid country on the earth will be tried by the Southwestern post of the Bureau of Plant Industry.

Plant breeders who are trying to develop disease-resistant strains of milo maize had an unusual experience in connection with the drouth at the dryland experiment station which the United States Department of Agriculture maintains near Dalhart. The Bureau of Plant Industry has at the station fields that have been cropped continuously to milo in order to keep up a maximum infection with the soil-borne milo disease. For several years the infection has killed most of the plants while they were young. This year the milo breeders planted a resistant strain developed at the Garden City, Kans., substation, which lives in spite of the disease in the soil. All around this field, crops were severely injured by drouth, but this milo remained green and vigorous. The scientists account for this in two ways: The variety is evidently resistant to the disease under the most severe drouth. So few plants were able to survive on those plots in previous years that they did not exhaust the moisture, and plants on these plots are now using this accumulated moisture.

More than 2,000 bales of cotton were ginned in Williamson county prior to September 1 this year than in 1933, according to E. C. Dahlberg, county statistician. The additional ginnings are attributed to the rapid rate in which the crop matured this year and the remaining ginnings will be 25 per cent lower than in 1933. The ginnings for 1934 were 35,438 as against 33,253 for 1933.

Fifty graders for use in the soil erosion conservation work being carried on in the Elm Creek watershed of Bell and adjacent counties have just been received. They are government owned and are furnished free to farmers residing within the watershed. There are now 110 graders in service on the project and 110 more have been ordered and will arrive soon. One hundred have been given work.

Average annual expenditure of $32.01 per person this year as compared to $25.36 last year, was revealed by figures compiled from the records of 700 farm women who served as wardrobe demonstrators working under the supervision of home demonstration agents in 91 counties. These 700 women kept complete and accurate accounts of their individual clothing expenditure for one year.

Figures of 155 farm women from 61 counties, who kept clothing accounts for their entire families, show an average annual expenditure per family of $88.33, as compared to an average of $76.17 spent the year before. These families contained 557 persons, making the average expenditure per person $24.95. The figure for last year was $21.73. These figures are said to reflect the added buying power of the farm family.

The general quality of the seed offered to market gardeners and canners is distinctly better than it was five or six years ago, according to vegetable specialists. Their experiments are designed to create nationally known standards for varieties so that the various growers of seed of a certain variety are more likely to work toward the same ideal type than they were when each grower was selecting his seed-bearing plants according to his own judgment of what gardeners wanted.

By comparison plantings of the leading varieties of vegetables in several important truck and market garden areas, these specialists are collecting definite evidences as to which varieties are best for each region. Their studies afford a basis for untangling the confusion of names under which the same variety or strains closely similar have been marketed under a large number of names.

The result has been that seed houses now realize that there is no need to handle so many varieties and differently named strains of each vegetable. They need no longer try to supply four or five named varieties which are in fact almost identical. A valuable result is that growers and dealers can devote more care and attention to the seed crops of the important varieties and are better able to improve the quality and purity of the comparatively few strains of each vegetable which are really of superior value.

Official maturity tests which were launched throughout the Rio Grande Valley by a staff of more than two dozen inspectors stationed at 13 cities by L. E. Pratt, McAllen, maturity division chief of the State Department of Agriculture, indicated that no heavy movement of citrus will take place until about October 10. Two groves, one at Pharr and one at Edinburg, showed Duncan grapefruit ready to pass. One orange grove in Hidalgo county also passed the official maturity standards set forth in the Texas green fruit law, Pratt said.

Two bales of millet hay cut in June, 1902, were exhibited at the Fannin county fair by J. C. Cline, a farmer living 12 miles southeast of Bonham. Outwardly the hay seemed to be in as good a condition as the day it was baled.

According to a statement issued by County Agent K. J. Edwards, the government had purchased 5,790 head of cattle out of Goliad county up to September 15. Out of this number 1,077 were unfit for food and were slaughtered, while 4,713 were accepted for use. There are 10,629 head of cattle offered for sale to the government that have not yet been inspected.

NEW SURVEY BEING MADE

A survey of the metropolitan areas of the State, now under way, embraces a study of all activities under the direction of the municipal authorities in the various areas studied, including police and fire protection, health safeguards, schools and playground activities. This survey, the first of its kind undertaken in the South, has for its aim the analysis of existing conditions in the larger cities of Texas and their environs, with a view to making possible suggestion of needed reforms in municipal policies. The study embraces five cities of more than 100,000 population and their immediate surroundings, namely, Dallas, San Antonio, Fort Worth, Houston and El Paso.

SEEK EXTENSION OF TREE BELT

Reception of the Federal government's proposal to produce a belt of trees from the Canadian border to the Panhandle of Texas, has been varied, but West Texans are proceeding with their plans on the assumption that it is going to become a reality, and that it is a good thing.

Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of Texas Tech College at Lubbock, has been engaged for some weeks in leading a fight to have the shelter belt extended into West Texas. The government has proposed to expend $75,000,000 in raising a belt of trees from the Northern border to the Panhandle in an effort to aid water and soil conservation.

PRISONER BREAKS HUNGER STRIKE

Jesse Barnett, who killed Deputy Sheriff Charles Caruth and wounded Special Railroad Officer Z. Bates at San Angelo four months ago as they attempted to arrest him on a lunacy warrant, has broken his hunger strike at the Tom Green county jail after 13 days of refusing to eat. The man has been adjudged insane. Dr. F. K. Turney told the prisoner he would continue giving him his milk through a tube to his stomach and glucose through the veins. That induced Barnett to return to normal eating.

SPIDER KILLS CENTIPEDE

Citizens of Miami, Texas, were spectators to an unusual fight not long ago between a large black spider with a red spot on its back and a centipede three inches long. The combat started on a sidewalk at 7 o'clock in the morning and lasted until 7 o'clock in the evening. The spider was victorious.

13 LUCKY FOR THIS YOUNG COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Cantrell of Lubbock have no fears of number 13. To them it is a lucky number. Both were born on the 13th of the month, were married on the 13th, and Thursday, September 13, a daughter was born—their first child.

Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it. Eccl. 12:7.

DEAR FRIENDS:

Busy days, cool evenings with fires crackling on the hearths—together with the warm and loving hearts of our cherished ones. What more do you ask of life? But youth does ask more. It wants adventure, achievement and life.

We have about completed one of the most adventurous and trying years of our world's history. We have crossed paths we scarcely dreamed existed. We have tried plans and schemes our forefather would have never dared to dream about. Where will it all lead? This is something no one knows. All we know is that we are going onward at an unnecessary pace. We seem as though impelled in the race by an unseen force which moves us at will and we have no control to guide our course or destiny.

Marconi, the inventor, in a recent address before an audience composed of some of the most brilliant minds in the world, said that without faith life would be a terrifying experience. He said that man had mastered inventions, measured the immensity of the universe, but had never discovered the secret of life—where it came from or where it went after death. He declares faith was the saving grace of the world. So it is in every life. Faith must play the greatest role if you and I are to succeed.

We first must have faith in God, faith in His word. Then we must have faith in ourselves, faith that we are capable of doing the tasks of life. We must have faith in our fellowman. Never was it so hard to keep faith as it is today. We must keep our eye on the goal, and plod up the hill, using the stones of unbelief at our feet as the stepping stones to build a stronger and better faith.

The fathers and mothers of today must give to their children a faith stronger than ever before if our Nation is to exist. With one class tearing at the throats of another, youth is bewildered and "knows not which way to turn." But back of the dark clouds there is a sun shining just as bright and lovely as in days gone by. Only the eyes with faith can clearly see the morning when it comes.

There is good and sad news in the mail bag each month. Let us see the latest news from our friends.

With love to all.

SUNSHINE CLUB NEWS

First, there is a letter from the mother of R. C. Shaw, Ravia, Okla. Mrs. Shaw tells us that R. C. recently came home from the hospital where he was fitted with new braces. His family is hoping that some day he will be strong like other boys. For a number of years he has been in a brace. R. C. would like to have some kind of music. It is not the practice of this page to ask for material aid for a Shut-In. Many times postage money is a sacrifice, but we are all willing to do it when we can give happiness and pleasure to those less fortunate than ourselves. Since R. C. has been so brave in his affliction, and is so young, I am asking anyone of the list of members or a reader of this page who has some kind of a musical instrument for which they have such an instrument, write me and if you give me instructions where to send it. Address the letter to Aunt Mary, care of R. C., Route 5, Box 179-B, Fort Worth, Texas. C. Harriet Emigh, Millerton, N. Y., writes such a sweet, cheerful letter, a real sunbeam.  With sorrow I learned of Aunt Emma's passing. I want to extend sympathy and understanding to Mildred. A few years ago I lost my own dear mother. She left me alone. After all, she has only gone on before, and so it is with your mother, Mildred. Please God some day we will go and find them again.  Hello, Aunt Susan, and Lillian Vedder. I've lost your address, Lillian. Hello, Martha Gene Griswold, and greetings to Martha Borchering. Some day I will write you.

We love to hear from dear Harriet. Come again, dear friend; not so long between letters. We have a new Shut-In from Pennsylvania, Beckie Zeigler, 17 West 4th Street, Lansdale, Pa. Zeigler will soon be 66 years old. She loves to read, but has no means of getting reading material. Send clippings in your letter to her.

There is a sweet letter from one of our most faithful Shut-Ins, one who has endeared himself to all of us, Devan James of Bronte, Texas. Devan writes: "I am well and doing fine. I am so glad all the sores that kept me in bed are well. (Devan is crippled, so still on the Shut-In list).  At the summer meeting here I sang five solos.

We had eight conversions and three additions to the church. I was one of them. I was baptized on a Sunday evening at five o'clock. The preacher read the sixth chapter of Romans to the fourteenth verse, and they sang, "Shall We Gather at the River" and "I Am Bound for the Promised Land." My uncle carried me in the water up to my shoulders, and the preacher got down on his knees and baptized me. He said I was the first person he ever baptized that was crippled. He has been preaching 25 years. It sure did make me feel good, and I enjoyed it. Pray for me that I will always be true to my Lord.  I still enjoy getting letters from the club. They are such nice letters the dear people write me. I always answer all I receive. I haven't gotten so many this summer.  I hope that your mother is better. I pray every day that she and all other Shut-Ins will get well so they can enjoy life better.  I think Devan's letter is so very sweet. I am sure all of us will be better for having read it.

Dear Aunt Mary Squires, Iredell, Texas, is heavy of heart with burdens hard to bear. But she writes: "My heart's desire is to serve my Lord and Master, and do His holy will while I live on earth, and to go to heaven when I die and be called a child of God." Mrs. Squires has been a member of the club for a long time, and has been faithful and true to the cause for which we all are laboring. Can't we all drop her a line or two, and tell her how much we love her and how much she has meant to the club? She needs a bit of cheer. Write to her at the above address.

Waldine Young, Jonesboro, Texas, sends her love to the club, and says she enjoys it very much. Mrs. Lanier Smith, Dallas, Texas, sends a change of address. We are glad to welcome into the club a dear girl, Mildred Lansford of Levelland, Texas. Mildred writes that she lives on a farm, and likes it fine. She is thankful she has never been sick except for a few minor complaints. She is anxious to write to the sick. She believes in prayer. We are very glad to have such a good Christian in the club.

There is a lovely letter from Mrs. Sallie Martin, written by her grandson, Leon Martin. Leon is one of the fine boys who will some day, we are sure, make us proud that we knew him, and that we called him a friend in his youth. I am confident he is a great comfort to his parents and grandmother. Mrs. Martin says: "I would have written sooner but I have been quite sick. However, I am better now.  I wish I could be with you and have a long talk.  I had 24 members write me last year, but there are not near so many this year. I can't answer all the letters on account of postage. But I sure do thank you for being so good and kind to us all. I hope to hear from you oftener, because that is the only enjoyment I have, having good letters and good books read to me. May God bless you in your home and your work."

This is the end of the mail bag for this month. Shorter than last month. Come on folks let us hear from you. We need the support of every member.

Shut-Ins are asked to refrain from asking such help. We simply send cheerful letters, clippings, poems, stories, etc., to the Shut-Ins on our list once a month. Each member is assigned the number and then gives a Shut-In member each month, which they are to write. It should be the greatest pleasure any well person could have to send cheer once a month to some Shut-In.

PICNICKERS ARE CAUTIONED

Just a small fire is all that is needed for picnic lunches in the woods. Before the fire is started, it is urged that all twigs and leaves for a distance of at least four feet around the fire be scraped away. Don't start a fire next to a big log or stump, and make sure every spark is out before leaving camp.

"White man build heap big fire, cook 'um face; Injun build small fire, cook 'um grub," is an old Indian saying.

KILLS COYOTE WITH POST

John Brocat, veteran barber at Pecos, while walking through a field near that city was about to be attacked by a coyote supposed to have been afflicted with rabies. Brocat was unarmed, but picked up a post that lay near his feet and swung it at the animal as it rushed toward him, the post hitting it on the head and killing it instantly.

J. J. Day, 80, who died about the middle of September at his home in Breckenridge, and who had lived in the county for more than 50 years, left a letter requesting that he be given an old fashioned funeral. In compliance with his wishes he was buried in a pine coffin made by a friend, and was taken to the cemetery in a wagon drawn by his own team of horses.

Until the day break, and the shadow flee away. Song of Sol. 2:17.

GONZALES TO CELEBRATE

Gonzales, founded in 1825, was a thriving town before Texas gained its independence from Mexico. In 1936 it will be 111 years old and will hold a celebration of its own along with the Texas Centennial celebration.

The first flag of Texas was made at Gonzales by Miss Evaline De Witt and Miss Cynthia Burns. It consisted of a width of cotton cloth about six feet long, in the center of which were painted the following words:

"COME AND TAKE IT."

These words were the challenge to a Mexican general when he demanded the surrender of a fort garrisoned by a small force of Texans.

In 1903 a monument was erected in the Cost community, about six miles south of Gonzales, marking the spot where the first gun was fired in the war between Texas and Mexico. The inscription on the monument reads:

"Here was fired the first gun for Texas independence, Oct. 2nd, 1835. Erected by the children of Gonzales city schools, April 21st, 1903."

One of the oldest Texas newspapers, the Gonzales Inquirer, founded in 1853, is still published daily and weekly at Gonzales.

FREAK LIGHTNING

During a rain storm a bolt of lightning entered the living room of the Moreland ranch house, near Burnet, burned up a radio set, shattered the bowl of a large lamp, leaving the chimney intact, and melted some copper wire, driving part of it into the lamp chimney without breaking the lamp. None of the family was injured.

HOME PROBLEMS

A JUMPER FROCK IS IDEAL FOR COMBINING SMART MATERIALS

PATTERN 1949

By Anne Adams

In the fall fashion openings, combinations of materials were given much prominence—especially combinations of dull and shiny surfaces. Could you think of a nicer way to express this idea than in the jumper dress—shown above? Imagine it with the blouse of dark brown satin and the skirt and pull-over made of a rust and brown wool mixture. Or think of it in a dark and medium shade of the fashionable green. The blouse is soft and becoming with its narrow collar knitted in the front and its graceful sleeves. The skirt is not only smart and well-fitting—it is very comfortable to walk in because of the pleats at the bottom of the front panel. The front of the pull-over with its high pointed girdle is slenderizing and the sash from the side seam makes it perfectly adjustable to the figure. Have you noticed that clever slash down the back of the blouse—chic, isn't it? Taken all in all this outfit will start the new season in the way it should go for any woman.

Pattern 1949 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28 and 30. Size 16 takes 2 1/4 yards 54-inch fabric and 2 1/4 yards 36-inch contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instruction included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred), for each Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

And while you are writing, why not include an order for a fascinating book, crammed from cover to cover with stunning illustrations and captivating descriptions of new fashions, fabric and other things that make a

FEEDING YOUR FAMILY IN WINTER

In the mail coming to my desk I notice that the question asked the most concerns diet. Until recent years diet had been a haphazard task with those vitally concerned, but little interested. The housewife and homemaker should educate herself in the things that will make the family well and strong; ready for the daily tasks. The choosing and preparation of food is her chief duty. We are careful of the feed we give our prize winning stock. We are careful of our fine chickens. We are careful of the gas and oil we use in our car. If we drove into a filling station and they tried to fill our tank with kerosene instead of gasoline, we would object seriously. Yet, day by day, we serve meals that are far more harmful to the human system than kerosene is to the finest make of car.

In far too many homes the meat, potatoes, gravy and hot bread menu is served 365 days in the year. The things mentioned have their place in a diet, but should not constitute the whole of our food.

The past few years our country has been swept with one fad after another in the matter of diet. Doctors, as a whole, agree that more serious illness has been caused by the different fadish methods of both diet and dieting than anyone other thing. Women have wrecked their health for life trying to reduce with fadish dieting. Such fads are foolish, expensive and dangerous to follow.

No hard and fast rule may be laid down for any special family. Where there is one member greatly overweight, or another persistently underweight, the advice of a good doctor should be taken as to the remedy. In the average family the housekeeper or mother can work out a satisfactory diet that will be tasty and healthful. It will take a little study each day to give a variety and keep down expenses.

The best life insurance a family can have is the homemaker who watches the diet list.

Our appetites and the needs of the body vary with the seasons. In the summer we crave and need a light, nourishing diet. We want salads, ice cream, lemonade, sandwiches, etc. But in the fall and winter our appetites crave more substantial foods.

For years a controversy has waged over meat eating. Today those giving an impartial study to diet advocate some meat. Like anything else, we should use common sense in its use. Meat should be excluded from the diet of children until they have cut their molar teeth. Then they should be given meat very sparingly, and taught how to masticate it thoroughly before swallowing it. For the average adult, meat once a day is not unhealthy where plenty of leafy vegetables and ripe fruit are used. The combination of meat and potatoes is wrong. Only leafy vegetables should be used with meats at the same meal.

Milk should always constitute one of the basic articles of our diet. It should be considered a solid food, and not a liquid, as it becomes a solid almost as soon as it enters the stomach. Persons with a weak digestion should use milk as a substitute for heavy foods, as it digests quickly and easily.

A food authority has given a simple table for rationing of the average person under average conditions. The quantities of food mentioned are for a day's diet, and should be divided into three or two meals as desired.

1. One egg or its equivalent in peas, beans or lentils.
2. Two squares of butter, such as served in hotels, or one-half cup of ordinary 20 per cent cream.
3. Fresh fruit once a day when possible, or canned tomatoes as a substitute.
4. One salad dish composed mostly of a leafy vegetable.
5. One medium sized tomato.
6. Three ordinary servings of cooked or raw vegetables.
7. As much whole-grain cereal or whole-wheat bread as the appetite calls for.
8. Dessert once a day, if desired.
9. One quart of milk a day, or one pint of milk and an ordinary serving of well cooked meat.
10. At least six glasses of water a day, preferably between meals.
11. Not many varieties of food at a meal, but varied meals.

Watch your weight. It is the barometer of conditions in the body cells. If you tend to overweight, cut down the quantity of desserts, cereals and bread. If underweight, increase the above mentioned foods, also milk. It may be well to remark that your disposition has a great deal to do with your digestion of foods. A sweet disposition means a sweet stomach. The reverse also is true.

In winter we can digest and assimilate richer foods than in summer. Our bodies need foods that produce energy and fuel. Children in school need foods that will digest quickly, and give brain energy.

Our appetites are something cultivated. Years of wrong eating can cultivate a depraved appetite. It has been proven that often the appetite for strong drinks was formed through wrong eating. So we see how important it is to give our families healthful, nourishing foods.

Condiments, such as pepper, mustard, vinegar and other seasonings, create an unnatural appetite. Salt is a mineral found in the body, and is natural and needed, but we use too much of it for our own good.

Tea and coffee should never be given to children, and should be used only moderately by adults.

Choose your food with intelligence, and prepare it with care. It is no less important to eat it with enjoyment.

In the recipe department you will find some excellent new dishes that will give a change to the winter menu, and at the same time be healthful and nourishing. Try them.

GOOD RECIPES

ter. Separate the white from the yolk of the egg. Stir the yolk into the crumb mixture. Beat the white stiff and fold into the mixture last. Cook on a hot, slightly oiled griddle until browned on one side, and then turn.

Tasty Pastry

With the coming of cool days we crave more sweets and desserts with our meals. This is because such foods are rapidly changed into heat and energy. An excess of these sweets act as an intoxicant and do more harm than good.

We are giving here some recipes for desserts that are tasty and healthful.

- 4 eggs
 - 1 cup granulated sugar
 - 1/2 cup lemon juice
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind.
- Roll crackers fine and mix powdered sugar and butter. Press mixture in an even layer against sides and bottom of buttered pie plate. Chill thoroughly. Soak gelatin in cold water. To beaten egg yolk add granulated sugar, lemon juice and salt, and cook over hot water until thickened, then stir in the gelatin and rind. Cool and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into cracker-crust-lined plate and chill. Serve garnished with whip cream if desired. Make one 8-inch pie.

Pumpkin Pie Filling

Prepare pumpkin in the following manner, if the old-fashioned pumpkin-pie flavor is desired. Trim rind from pumpkin, cut it into cubes and stew slowly several hours in a small quantity of water till cooked down rather dry and becomes dark in color. Then the pumpkin should be rubbed through a colander. This is more trouble than using canned pumpkin, but once tried you will much prefer it to the canned product. After pumpkin is ready, mix the following ingredients:

- 3/4 cup milk
 - 1/2 cup pumpkin
 - 1/2 cup brown sugar
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1 egg
 - 1 tablespoon flour
 - 1 tablespoon butter
 - 1/4 cup molasses
 - 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon.
- Heat the milk to the boiling point. Mix together the other ingredients, then stir the hot milk into them and mix thoroughly. Pour into the crust and bake till firm.

Crust

2 cups pastry flour, sifted before measuring

- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/3 cup salad oil
- 1/4 cup cold water

Mix the salt and flour in a mixing bowl; turn the oil in all at once, and stir with a spoon until the oil and flour are about half mixed. Then pour in the water, all at once, and stir until the dough is just stuck together. Much mixing makes the crust less flaky. This pastry is softer than paste made with hard fat, but do not add more flour to it. It makes the dough tough.

Sift flour on the bread board. Take half the paste and put it on the flour on the board; sprinkle flour on top of the paste, pat into a ball, then begin to roll it with the rolling pin, rolling very lightly and always from the middle to the sides of the dough, so as to keep the piece as near round as possible. Do not try to pick the crust up and turn it over. Continue to roll without changing position until it is the size of the pie plate. Then dredge with flour over the paste and insert a knife blade under the crust to loosen it from the board, fold one-half over the other half, then lay over one-half of the plate and unfold. Press it close to the plate in the angles between the bottom and sides of the plate, trim off the edge and flute the same as any other crust. Pour in the pumpkin mixture and bake in a moderate oven until done a golden brown. The amount of ingredients called for make two large pies with single bottom crust.

Adding a tiny pinch of salt to fresh milk will make it keep much longer.

NEW PORT NEARS COMPLETION

Port Isabel expects cargo to start moving through its new port in November. Terminal facilities are being rushed to completion. The outer channel is being deepened by the U. S. hopper dredge Absecon. There will be at least 20 feet of water over the bar at Brazos-Santiago by November, according to H. S. Crawford, port director. That will permit the entry of some coastwise vessels. It will not be until the early part of 1935 that general sea traffic can utilize the port. By then the channel will have been deepened 25 feet.
